

ALLIES FORCED TO YIELD IN FIGHT NORTH OF OISE SAYS LATE PARIS REPORT

GENERAL JOFFRE MEETS VI OLENT RESISTANCE IN AT TEMPT TO CARRY OUT
MOVEMENT AGAINST VON KLUCK.

DECISIVE CLASH NEAR

Anglo-French Forces Resume Of fensive in Supreme Effort to End Most Stubbornly Con tested Battle of History.

The allies have been obliged to give ground at certain points at the west ern side of the battle line. This is announced in a statement issued by the French war office at three o'clock this afternoon. The announcement is brief, containing only additional infor mation that the battle continues with great violence to the north of the Oise without decisive results and no change on the remainder of the front.

A wireless dispatch from Berlin di rect to Sayville, L. I., today brings a long German official statement in which, however, there is no reference whatever to the great engagement in which the allies are attempting to turn the German right wing in north ern France and reach the German line of communication in Belgium.

The German war office declares that in the siege of Antwerp forts, Lierre, Kilom and Koningshoeven have been taken, opening a way for an attack on the inner circle of forts.

The Belgian denial that any of their forts have fallen, came by way of Lon don yesterday, and again today an offi cial Belgian announcement which passed through the hands of the British censor declares that the fortified positions around Antwerp is un changed.

The German war office says that the Russian left wing was defeated after a furious battle of two days on the Niemen river.

There has been nothing official from Petrograd and the most recent report
—unofficial or official—from the Rus sian capital, say that the German and Austrian forces all along the fighting area from the Baltic to Hungary, were being checked, driven back or routed.

The German infantry have appeared in the fighting of the territory of Kiau Chow, China. Tokio announced a sur prised night attack by infantry from Tsing Tau, but says that the attack was repulsed. Fighting between the land and naval forces at Kiau Chow continues.

Servians still claim to be about to capture Sarajevo, the capital of the Austrian province of Bosnia. War headquarters at Nish announce that Servian troops have approached the fortifications of the city.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 5.—The fact that fight ing is in progress in and around the town of Douai, mid-way between Ar ras and Valenciennes on the railroad to Mons, is taken in London to show how surely the allies in northern France have pushed the forward movement which they hope will en counter General Von Kluck, the com mander of the German right wing.

For the last week the Germans, so far as can be ascertained of the few facts known in London, have been hurling themselves against differ ent points in the allies' line in an effort to discover a weak mesh in the allies' defense.

To Resume Offensive.
At present in the view of General
Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French forces, the process of attrition has come far enough to justify the re sumption of offensive movements on the part of the allies, as is announced in the latest communication from French headquarters.

Apparently the intent now is to at tempt something decisive against the German right wing, and if possible bring to an end this contest which for magnitude and stubbornness is with out precedent in history.

The series of highland stretching north and south along the allies' left are the master keys of the battle, and a considerable force from over seas and elsewhere has been pushed up to secure control of them.

At Soissons the German trenches have been captured, but the Germans continue to fight fiercely and are still tacking at this point as elsewhere along the entire line of battle. Ger man official reports claim success just as confidently as General Joffre main tains the contrary.

Allies Yield Ground.
Paris, Oct. 5.—The following official communication was given out in Paris
this afternoon:

"On our left wing to the north of the Oise the battle continues with great violence. The result remains in decisive. We have been obliged at some points to yield ground.

"Along the remainder of the front
there has been no change.

"In Russia after a severe battle which lasted ten days the German army, which was operating between the eastern Prussia front and the Ni emen river has been driven back along the entire line, and made its retreat abandoning a considerable quantity of war material. This army has evacu ated completely the territory of the Russian provinces of Suvalsk and Lonia.

Expect Decisive Move.
Paris, October 5.—When the long drawn out battle in the north was re sumed today there was a feeling in many quarters that decisive develop ments were imminent. Consequently this afternoon's statement of the war office of the battle of the Oise, al though in the history of battles, was awaited with the greatest interest.

While the French realized that the battle has not been won it does not seem to many of them that it cannot now be lost. If the allies win, no doubt is held that they will pay for it, the sacrifice on both sides already being great. The tone of official communications has furnished the best reasons for the hope on the part of the French, although the announce ment of the visit of President Poin care to the front, was an additional factor in the confidence and optimism felt in regard to the intense struggle.
His action is generally commented on as indicating that success is at hand.

Battle Like a Campaign.
Despite the hope of the French military critics, Lieutenant Colonel Roussuet declared that the battle still can last for some time, pointing out that modern encounters last now as long as campaigns formerly did. In 1859 the situation was settled in two months, while in 1870
it took thirteen weeks, the fighting after Sedan and Metz being a con stant fight for honor. In the furious fighting going on Lieutenant Colonel Roussuet says neither adversary can claim what Napoleon calls the result.

With the shifting of the battle scene the railroads are resuming traf fic through a area occupied by the Germans.

BELGIAN SHARPSHOOTERS GUARDING ANTWERP AGAINST GERMANS

(c) Underwood & Underwood.
At the extreme edge of the fortifications around Antwerp the "grand guard" is entrenched. Here, behind great water pipes, the Belgian sharpshooters find a safe barricade from which to pick off the daring Germans in their sorties on the outskirts of the city.

BRESLAU IS OBJECT OF RUSSIAN ADVANCE

Czar's Armies Push on Cracow—Re port Rout of Germans at River Nieman—Nicholas at Front.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 5.—The Russians con tinue to push eastward on Cracow, evidently with the hope of getting sent to Breslau and then 30 on stretching their tentacles out south ward toward Budapest. Cossacks are well in on the plains of Hungary.
Even Budapest admits that they have crossed the river Theiss, which was regarded as one of the main obstacles to their progress. By getting across the railroad at Szeged they secured the second line leading to the Hun garian capital. They have already seized the Lember-Budapest line at Ungvar.

Reports Germans Routed.
Russian reports indicate that the German offensive toward the Nieman river from the east Prussian frontier has ended in a German rout after the battle of Augustow, which has been under way since Sept. 5. If these re ports are true, it means that not only has General Rennenkampf been given an opportunity to resume the offensive,
but the important fortress of Osso wet has been relieved from invest ment.

Contradicts Russians.
An official message from the com mandant of the German fortress at Koenigsburg, however, directly con tradicts the Russian report and the Berlin version of the fighting. Though it does not localize it particularly, as the Russian reports maintain that the Germans along the east Prussian frontier have generally been victori ous.

Czar at Battle Front.
Petrograd, Oct. 5.—Emperor Nicho las, commander-in-chief of the Rus sian armies, has arrived at the head quarters of the active army. This in formation was given out today from general headquarters.

In Russian military circles it is felt that the Russian general staff is now able to analyze and will be able to forestall the intended German inva sion of Russia.

Suspect Strategy.
In spite of the great importance of the eight day battle between General Rennenkampf on the Russian side, and General Von Hindenburg on the Ger man side, in which the Germans failed to cross the river Nieman, according to reports here, and were driven back with heavy losses, it is the Russian opinion that the Germans intended this costly and brutal demonstration to draw the Russian troops from East Poland preliminary from the main ob ject.

COUNTY SOIL MOVE UNDER DISCUSSION

Commercial Club Will Have Univer sity and High School Aggie Experts As Guests.

Prof. Otis, farm expert of the agri cultural school at Madison, is to be the guest of the Commercial club di rectors next Monday noon. Prof. A.
M. West of the local high school, will also be present. This was decided at the regular meeting of the board to day. The question of agricultural matters for the county was discussed quite freely, and the admission of farmers to honorary membership of the Commercial club came up for con sideration and was referred to the membership committee for further consideration. The retail section of the club at its meeting last Wednes day, discussed the ornamental street lighting for the business section and asked for an expression from the di rectors. This matter came up today and Chairman Amerpohl was instruct ed to confer with the mayor and coun cilmembers on the subject and report in two weeks. The lighting committee of the Commercial club has had the matter up on various occasions in an effort to bring about ornamental light ing. The council has been experi menting somewhat on smaller units of light in the residence section to see if an equalization could not be brought about so that ornamental lights could be used without much in creased cost. Most cities from 2,000 population up have these lights and it is felt that Janesville should not be behind in so important a matter.

ANTI-TRUST BILL IS DEFEATED TODAY

Senator Walsh, Montana, Sounds
Death Knell for Clayton Mea sure in Senate.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Oct. 5.—The Clayton anti-trust bill was defeated in the senate today by Senator Walsh of Montana, who replied to the criticism of Senator Reed of the pending con ference reports on the measure.
Senator Walsh said the Clayton bill as framed by the conference was in accordance with the democratic plat form pledges and followed the policy to which congress committed itself
when it passed the administration trade commission bill.
"The present bill," he said, "is aimed at the practices which are the beginning of monopoly-practice in dustry in before the Sherman law," comes subject to the Sherman law.

INVADERS CHECKED IN BOSNIAN FIGHT

Austrian Field Marshal in Statement
Claims Serbs and Montenegrins
Have Met Reverse.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 5.—A correspondent to the Reuter Telegram company at Am sterdam transmits the following offi cial report from Vienna, signed by Field Marshal Potiorek.
"The Serbian and Montenegrin forces invading east Bosnia have com pelled us to detach forces to this re gion which is far from the arena of the principal division. The first action started in East Bosnia, already has come to a successful termination.
Two Montenegrin brigades, after two days of severe fighting, were com pletely defeated. They are in a re treat across the border and must leave behind them their transports to gather with a considerable quantity of supplies.
In the action undertaken in the northern part of the country, a half battalion of Austrian troops captured a full detachment of Serbians.

tinues. Four Japanese shells hit the

INVENTION PRECLUDES POSSIBILITY OF PANIC.

Cleveland, Oct. 5.—Reputitions of of panic horrors of the past will be averted forever, according to Fire Chief Wallace of Cleveland today, if owners of public buildings and device patented by George H. Stan bridge a Cleveland carpenter.

The inventor's invention can be placed on either double or single doors with surety of keeping them locked from the outside. The slight est pressure from the inside, how ever, allows the doors to immediately swing wide open.

GIRLS PREFER JOBS TO GETTING MARRIED.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—A few years ago when a girl left school she immedi ately began to hunt a husband. Get ting married was her only outlook, and the best chance she had of getting a home. It is different now. When a Chicago girl leaves school these days
she immediately hunts a job. Then, when she has demonstrated her abil ity to support herself, and perhaps contribute largely toward the upkeep of divers brothers and sisters—she leisurely looks over the male of the species and selects one to suit her fancy.
All of this is indicated by the new school census, according to W. L.
Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education. His figures show there are 759,778 males engaged in oc cupations in the city, compared with 555,515 in 1903, while 236,611 females hold positions now, against 149,867 in 1903. The men gained only 36 per cent, while the women gained 58 per cent.

"These statistics show the women of today are fast breaking away from economic dependence on men," said Bodine. "Girls are not now marry ing just to get a home. Statistics show that marriages are not increas ing with the same percentage of gains as the population."
Some of the occupations in which women and girls of Chicago are engaged, and the number employed, are as follows: Stenographers, 21,699, dressmakers, 15,093, domestics, 34, 779, physicians, 324, janitresses, 725, bookkeepers, 9,577, merchants, 3,375,
telephone operators, 4,777, milliners, 5,461, teachers, 8,573.

been put at the Massachusetts Insti

ing of one hundred of the older students who have already returned.
The advisory board plans to assist new students in every way, especial ly in registering and securing suit able homes. The plans have been ap proved by the Technology faculty and student control will be largely vested in the advisors.

der arms and ready. By October 15 there will be 1,000,000. Italy will begin to take back what Austria

FORTS STILL HOLDING

Have Suffered Little From German
Bombardment While Germans
Have Lost 8,000 Men Says
London Report.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 5.—A correspondent of the Daily Telegram in a dispatch
under date of Saturday says:
"The Germans continue their de perate efforts to capture Antwerp.
They are in a desperate hurry to ac complish it, firing unceasingly with their artillery fire at Fort Whelhem and Woivre and St. Catherine, and flinging their infantry forward in fran tic efforts to break through.
8,000 Germans Killed.
"Their losses are enormous, and the number killed is said to estimate about 8,000.
"The Belgians adopted a clever ruse at Whelhem. After the heavy bombardment for several hours the Ger mans ceased to reply, where upon the German staff, thinking the forts out of action, ordered their infantry to ad vance in close columns. The Ger mans waited until they could see the whites of their eyes and then opened a murderous fire.
"Thus far the forts of the outer ring of the Antwerp defenses have suffered little harm from the German bombardment. The Germans' big guns are not being worked by regu lar soldiers, but by men in citizens' clothes who only wear an armband to indicate their military occupation.
Undoubtedly these men are employ ees of the Krupp factory, hastily sum moned to replace the losses among the regular gun layers. The heaviest German guns are located north of "Wilvor," where fortifications of rein forced concrete have been prepared.
German Statement.
A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Berlin, via Amsterdam gives an official statement issued at the German headquarters on the even ing of October 4. It says:
"In the western front and in the Ar gonne district has succeeded success fully.
"The operations of Antwerp have been carried out according to plans and without fighting.
Small Villages Shelled.
"German shells have practically wiped out most of the little villages and hamlets in the outer circles of the Antwerp defenses. The Germans still hold Maelin, though at a heavy cost, as the town is subject to a constant bombardment from the Antwerp forts."

Situation Unchanged.
Antwerp, Oct. 5.—According to offi cial announcements made here today
the situation in the fortified positions around Antwerp remains today with out change.

MANDOT DEFEATS RIVERS IN TWENTY ROUND MATCH.

Joe Mandot, the lightweight who trimmed Ad Volgas recently in Milwaukee, picked another notch in his fame when he subdued Mexican Joe Rivers in twenty rounds of millings at New Orleans Sunday. Rivers played heavy for the baker boy's while Mandot used a left jab that Rivers could not face. The fight was rather slow, both stalling for leads but the finish was strong. Charlie White and Stanley Youkum, the "iron men" met in a ten round mill before the Kenosha club. White and Youkum is a rugged fighter and although was knocked out by White in a previous battle, the best mill of the year in Wisconsin is expected.

ENGLISH SOLDIERS' TALE OF FIGHTING

BURTON. ENGLAND. NEWSPAPER PRINTS FOLLOWING STORY.

A BARRICADE OF DEAD

Awful Slaughter.—Was Invalided Back to England but Expects to Rejoin Regiment Soon.

In a copy of the Burton Chronicle, of September 17, the following story of a Burton soldier who had been wounded in fighting on the front and brought back to England to recuperate, is printed. It is the story of an every-day soldier, not an officer, not a war correspondent, but of actual happenings expressed from an English point of view. It is as follows:

ONE OF TWELVE SURVIVORS
A graphic description of the battle of the Somme, in which the British Expeditionary Force has been engaged in France was given today by another Burton soldier who has been invalided home, in the person of Private C. E. McLoughlin, of the Coldstream Guards. McLoughlin, who is a fine, upstanding Irishman, and a typical Guardsman, was formerly employed as a constable on the Midland Railway and resides in Grange Street. He was a Reservist prior to the war, and joining his regiment immediately upon the outbreak of hostilities, was among the first to see action and to see the front line. He went through the terrible battle of Mons without receiving so much as a scratch, but was shot in the head during his company's plucky defense of Landrethun. He is now a representative of this morning's Private McLoughlin confirmed the reports of the wonderful accuracy of the German artillery, but made no reference to the enemy's rifle fire. After digging trenches at Mons throughout Sunday night, he said, the troops were ordered to move some hundreds of yards to the right of their position, having been received that the Germans had discovered their position.

HOW THE ENEMY WERE FOOLED
"We stood in our new position for about an hour and a half while the Germans filled in our newly-dug trenches with shrapnel. Our situation was then made known to the enemy by aviators dropping smoke bombs over us. Realizing how they had been fooled, their artillery simply rained shells upon us, and we were forced to retire. Occasionally a couple of their battalions charged us, but we just moved them down with a cool rifle fire, and they resorted to artillery again. All that you have heard about the deadly artillery is quite true, in fact I believe nine out of ten per cent of our casualties were the result of shell fire. I don't say that their gunnery is better than the British, but for every one of our guns that spoke, six of theirs would answer. Of course they could not compare with our lads in handling the rifle; indeed, our musketry must have been an awful shock to them. Sometimes we felt it was not much use shooting, for their numbers were larger than it made little difference to them how many we shot.

OUR LOST OPPORTUNITIES.
Proceeding, our informant said the British soldiers lost many opportunities of inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, owing to the fact that our troops were under orders to retire and were unable to follow up the advantages they gained. The British retreat was contained throughout Monday night, the soldiers having no sleep and the next day they were called upon to take part in the fiercest struggle in which they had up to then been engaged. They were urged time and again by the enemy, who made at least a dozen unsuccessful attempts to cut them off. The battle abated a little in the attempts, and the British soldiers were allowed a well deserved sleep of three hours in a small village some distance from Mons. The Germans continued to shell them, but they were out of range by about 400 yards. How valuable time be judged from the fact that rather than stop to take out the enemy's officers and men, the British turned back to the fields through which they marched. Later, the English soldiers moved to Landrethun, where they took things easy, the men being permitted to rest around the village. They had not been there more than a couple of hours, however, when the alarm sounded and it was ascertained that some German troops had moved into the village, but had gone away again.

GERMAN TREACHERY.
"About half-past eight that evening," said Private McLoughlin, "my company, numbering about 100, were ordered on outpost duty. It was raining dismally at the time, and shortly afterwards a thunderstorm burst. A party, but in reply to our sentry's challenge no reply was received. French officer then challenged the oncomers, and the reply, 'We are French,' came from the advancing party's commander. The latter walked up to our sentry, his left hand extended in friendly greeting. The next instant a sword flashed in the commander's right hand, and the unsuspecting sentry's head was severed at a stroke. One of our men, unable to control himself, rushed madly at the treacherous German, for such he proved to be, and flooring him, commenced a violent struggle on the ground. Our boys were not getting ready to fire, and the man struggling with the German was called back to our ranks. As he was returning, however, the officer rose to his knees and brought our man down with his revolver. I need not tell you that when we received the word to fire, more than one of us had reserved our first shot for the German traitor. There were about 8,000 of them facing us, and I believe we killed at least 300 before they ever fired a shot. The advance guard revealed bellowing and screaming like madmen. The wounded also shrieked horribly; it was more nerve-racking to hear than it was fighting."

BARRICADE OF DEAD.
"As soon as the fighting was fixed several strands of barbed wire across the street, and the night was so pitch dark that when the enemy advanced again they were unaware of its presence, and while disentangling themselves we shot them down as easily as shelling peas. This was repeated several times, so that we soon had a barricade of dead German soldiers. Some of their wounded could speak English fairly well, baffled us a good deal. For instance, we were not sure sometimes whether an advancing force was our own men or the enemy, for they shouted, 'For God's sake, don't shoot,' and we thought they were either British or French. Eventually we drove them off, and they made use of their artillery again. They found the range, and the Germans were shot, and a whole lot of our men fell. A bay-rack just at the rear of us was shortly afterwards set on blaze made us too good a mark for them, and we were ordered to retire, but only twelve of our gallant company rejoined the battalion. I had been shot in the head myself, and went to the hospital to be treated. It was just like a butcher's shop there."

HOSPITAL SHELLED.

The hospital guardsman clenched his hands as he described how, at a final resort, the Germans directed their fire upon the hospital. "They had been shelling the place all the time I was there," he said, "and as soon as I left in the ambulance the building burst into flames, and was soon a mass of charred ruins. It is such things as that which make us eager to return to the front. When the time of reckoning comes, the Germans will be some heavy liabilities to settle. They have no idea of honorable fighting. They carry machine guns on stretchers, and thinking that they are moving wounded men, they are actually using their weapons at points of vantage. What others have said about their placing helpless women and children before them when attacking is quite true. In the morning, our company was ordered to whether he had witnessed any German atrocities being committed. Private McLoughlin said he had not seen them, but that there was no doubt that they had perpetrated the most terrible outrages for in villages through which he had passed scores of horribly mutilated bodies of women and children were to be seen lying in the streets.

CUSHING IMPROVING; EXPLAINS ACCIDENT

Young Man Injured in Accident in Beloit Will be Moved to Janesville Hospital This Week.

William Cushing, who was severely injured in the automobile accident at Beloit Friday evening in which George Jones met his death, is safely past the danger point and will be transferred from the Beloit Emergency hospital to the Mercy hospital of this city some time during the week. He is suffering intense pain at present, owing to internal injuries in the chest caused by the fracture of two ribs by the blow given him by the steering wheel.

Besides the chest injuries, Mr. Cushing is suffering from a splintered shoulder blade, minor scalp wounds, and a long cut on his arm which required ten stitches to close. Cushing was allowed to meet visitors Sunday and a new light was thrown upon the accident. The injured man stated that after he had passed the two cars and was making way for the third machine he reached down to turn on more water for the carbon tank for his lights when the car swerved with the back.

The running board grazed into the vehicle ripping off the guards and lifting the back nearly over. The machine then turned turtle going completely over, landing right side up and facing in the opposite direction from which it was going.

A man named Alvah Morris was on the seat of the back when the collision came and was thrown down between the horses. Fortunately George Flint, the driver was able to grab the reins and turn the animals before they bolted, leaving Morris safe. The horses then jerked loose and bolted, but were caught within a block of the street crossing.

The fact that the machine turned turtle accounts for the position Miss Frances Seales, the young lady who escaped with slight injuries, being found between the two side wheels. Cushing was jammed in by the steering wheel which crushed into his chest. Jones, who died a half hour after the accident, on the operating table, was thrown from his seat over the back to the pavement.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Daily Gazette:
The fact that us women have taxes to pay makes me ask through your columns, why the city street superintendent allows the placing of good things in the curbing in front of the Williams' residence on Sharon street, instead of covering the sand on the Sharon street hill filling holes with dirt that is carted much further with two men riding on the load. We will excuse Mr. Goodman for being a little careless this time, but us poor widow women hate to see our taxes paying three men for one day's work. Now then, why not let the Civic League women look to the work done in front of their homes and report through our good paper what they notice.

CHILD LIFE BODY IS TO BE FORMED IN CITY SHORTLY

Representatives of American Institute of Child Life Here to Make Tentative Arrangements.

To institute a Janesville Chapter of the American Institute of Child Life, an organization to stimulate interest in all lovers of children, for a better understanding of child life and feeling for coming men and women of tomorrow, Miss H. Spahr of Washington, D. C., general secretary of the national body and Miss McKerrigan of Chicago a field secretary are in the city in the interests of the movement.

The initial meeting of the Janesville Chapter is scheduled to be held at the library lecture room at 8 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Parents, teachers and all others interested in child life are invited to attend. At this meeting tentative plans for organization will be considered and discussions will be in order concerning the need of child study and some of the benefits derived from work of this nature.

Later a second meeting will be held for regular organization. Officers will be elected and other important business disposed of. The national organization has headquarters at Philadelphia. At its head is Dr. William Byron Forbush, the well-known lecturer and social worker with boys. On its administration board are some of the leading men and women of the United States, among them being David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Denver; William L. Bryan, president of the University of Indiana; G. B. Johnson of the New York School of Philanthropy; Mrs. Mary V. Grice; founder of the home and school associations and Miss Smith, head of the famous kindergarten department of Columbia university.

The American Institute of Child Life is an outgrowth of the now historic Child Welfare Conference called by President Roosevelt, said Miss Spahr. "The late Dr. James H. Canfield of Columbia university, and Dr. Melvil Dewey, state librarian of New York, were two men who about this time began to see new horizons. There has been no doubt a proneness in America among our philanthropies to maintain ambulances at the bottom of the precipice rather than to bring up their own children. It is rather noticeable that an age which is emphasizing the fact that parent-hood is a profession has not provided many professional schools for the high thing.

"That an educational institution for this very end should have come into being and grown into the dimensions of a university, without the aid of conventions, 'crusades' or a 'crusade' shows that the need is deeply felt, and that any organization that can supply it is warmly welcomed.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY WILL OPEN SEASON

Members of Janesville Organization to Commence Second Year's Work on Next Monday Evening.

The Janesville Dramatic Society, organized in this city a year ago, for the purpose of promoting the study and presentation of drama, will open its second season on next Monday evening, October the twelfth in the council chamber at the City Hall.

This season will be called to order by Miss Mary Buckmaster, vice-president of the club. It is requested that every member of the society last year be present next Monday night to be drawing up plans for the coming year's work. The club hopes to be able to present to the public this season two plays and possibly three. There is a feeling of satisfaction among the members that the public were very graciously greeted with the production given last June, so as to warrant the success of at least two plays the coming year.

New officers for the year will be elected Monday night, in addition to outlining the work. The story of the drama will be taken up more in detail this season, as last year, a sort of speedy review characterized the last year's work.

Last year, considerable difficulty arose as to what night the club should meet. The matter will next Monday night depend on the result of a vote which will in all probabilities be taken. The majority of the members will rule, and set the night of meeting. Every member appears enthusiastic, and from the present outlook the club should experience a very successful season, both in study and stage work.

Trouble With a Rooster.

A Lewiston (Me.) rooster distinguished itself the other day. It was on exhibition in a shop window, the somehow escaped. It fled across the street into a cigar store, upset a box of cigars on the counter and then flew up on the shelves, knocking down a lot of pipes and boxes. Being chased out, it went down the street squawking wildly and took refuge in a store where four men were playing cards and olawed around like a wild bald eagle until chased out with a broom. The alarmed fowl next took an aerial flight to another store where there were several live lobsters in the window. One of them closed on the leg of the rooster and held on until the owner of the bird arrived and reclaimed him.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.
In these days of erratic reform, many people are carried away with the idea that the government ought to own the railroads and all other public utilities. In this connection it is interesting to read what Bishop Thomas A. Neely, the Methodist Episcopal church said recently about government ownership. The same argument applies to city ownership, as the principle is the same. The bishop said:

"A government exists not to transact business, but to protect life and property; to allow every individual a fair chance to make his own living, and to give freedom of initiative to individuals and combinations to prosecute business along legitimate lines. It is not the business of a government to undertake to do everything for everybody. The suggestion that the government should take control of the telephone and telegraph companies is along that line. The government has just as much right to assume control of all the newspapers of the country as it has to engage in the telephone or telegraph business. If the government took charge of every business enterprise, every worker would be in the employ of the government, and the workers would be worse off than they are at the present time.

"Government ownership would mean building up a huge political machine. It would mean practical slavery for the workers under a government that controlled everything. That is where socialism leads."

"The initiative referendum and recall, and many other things we hear about nowadays, are decidedly un-American. The American government is a representative government; not a government by the masses. Under our form of government the people select their wisest and best men to represent them. These men get together, hear all sides of the question at issue, and for a sound judgment. The great multitude cannot come together; it cannot hear both sides of a question, and it is not competent to arrive at a wise decision. If the masses are not competent to arrive at wise decisions, they certainly are not competent to make and un-rake laws. A government cannot conduct business like a private individual. Individuals can take a risk in a business enterprise and, if they lose, they stand to pay the losses out of their own pockets. If a government fails in business it would add to the taxes of the people to make up the deficit. I have seen government-owned railroads in other countries and they were managed poorly. Certainly they were not so well managed as the Pennsylvania and other systems I could name.

"The government is not making money out of the parcel post, and it is interfering with private business. The government is likely to lose money in any business enterprise it undertakes."

The business of the nation, as well as of the states, will be better managed when a time limit is placed on legislation. The sessions of congress should be limited to ninety days, or if necessary to keep up a continuous performance the number of representatives should be reduced, and then compelled to devote all of their time to public service.

The average state legislature can do mischief enough in thirty days, and this ought to be the time limit. Reform fads and crazy amendments are the result of too much legislation, and government ownership is a fair sample.

to formally announce his candidacy. The senator, however, saw fit to state in his formal statement that the nomination of Mr. Philipp was the minority and consequently involved a complete reversal of the established policy of the state. Then he says: "For these reasons it has been my personal opinion that there ought to be an independent candidate. But I do not think that these facts warrant a public official who has been elected to serve in another capacity in becoming an independent candidate upon the call of a voluntary conference, without action on the part of the voters on which to predict such candidacy."

Suffering smoke! How is that for reputation of the far-famed primary law and the second choice Mary Ann monstrosity by the very man who created this Frankenstein of modern days. If Mr. Dahl or Mr. Hutton had been nominated the primary law would have been idealized, but because the people spoke for themselves an independent candidate is to be hoisted upon them by the "Little Boss" at Washington and a few disgruntled politicians who see their occupation gone.

Nor are these politicians alone in the republican party. There are democrats as well who would only seek an excuse to vote for some other candidate than Karel so it will work both ways. It will not hurt Mr. Philipp's campaign one jot or tittle, it will benefit it, if anything, when the voters fully understand the selfish motives that are behind the movement. If these disgruntled politicians want to step outside the republican party their departure will not be mourned. Doubtless the democrats of the line feel the same way about the traitors in their ranks, so go ahead, gentlemen, and put up another candidate, and may you have a merry campaign of it.

That the world does not know what is going on behind the veil of secrecy that hangs over the scene of war on the continent, in both the eastern and western fighting, is most certain. The allies put up a brave front, Germany and Austria are fighting for their very existence, and consequently the public must wait for definite news or take the garbled, disjointed reports that are permitted to leak through the censorship at intervals long after the events recorded have passed into history.

There seems to be many arguments about the part Ireland is playing in the present struggle. The Ulstermen claim they are furnishing more soldiers than the Home Rulers, and the Home Rulers come back by quoting figures to prove they are the real patriots. So it goes on, and meanwhile Lord Kitchener's appeal for more food for the cannon finds ready response.

Sunday the prayers of millions of Americans went up in unison to heaven in an appeal to end this awful carnage across the seas. Janesville played its part in the great chorus of prayer and may its spirit be speedily seen in a peaceful solution of the controversy that has plunged millions into a senseless struggle for supremacy.

When talking politics do not forget that the legislature is just as important as any state office. If Philipp is elected governor and he has an adverse legislature, his work will be nullified. Rock county can do its share by electing Whitsett and Winegar to the assembly, and this fact should not be forgotten.

Governor McGovern weathered the storm of abuse of La Follette during his candidacy for the nomination for senator and it is probable he will not be much disturbed by further attacks from the same source on his election.

On The Spur of The Moment

Help.
We've written about the lunch counter.
We've roasted the boarding house trustee.
We've scolded the amateur singer and said nasty things of her tune.
We've satirized women's apparel, and been too sarcastic by half.
We've mentioned the horseless piano, and knocked the poor old phonograph.
We've written about the new baby and wife's first biscuits we've slammed.
We've pried the suffragette husband whose head with new notions is crammed.
We've ridiculed all politicians, and caucuses that have been packed.
We've said what we could of club women.
The night prowling husband we've whacked.
We've even penned lines to sweet Mary.
To Mary who had the small lamb.
We've also exposed the young hopeful who steals to the cupboard for jam.
We've harpooned the telephone gossip.
The street car conductor as well.
The porters, the coppers, the barbers and others, too many to tell.
We've searched through the earth, heaven and water.
We've versified every known pun, and off we have reached the conclusion.
There's nothing new under the sun. O list to the wall of the scribbler.
We ask if upon bended knees, Can't somebody start a new notion?
Won't somebody do something, please?

It Was In His Head.
Balzac once promised Lireux, the manager of the Odeon theater in Paris, a five-act drama, "The Springs of Quinola." He was so busy with other work, however, that not till he had been long and urgently importuned did he promise to read his piece to the company the next week. The company gathered about him on the day appointed, and he read his five-act play fluently through to the end. Lireux was enthusiastic, ran up to shake hands with the great writer and turned over the pages of the manuscript, whose contents had pleased him mightily. But what was this? There were only four acts. The last pages of the manuscript were blank. In surprise the manager asked what it all meant. Balzac smiled and admitted that he had not yet written out the fifth act, but declared that he had it as clearly in his head as if it already stood on paper. "And," continued the writer merrily, "I have in the same head two more outcomes of the plot in case the one I just read doesn't please you."

Appetite Follows Good Digestion
Nearly everyone indulges their appetite and the digestive organs are abused, resulting in a congestion of poisonous waste that clogs the bowels and causes much misery and distress.

The most effective remedy to correct this condition is the combination of simple laxative herbs with peppin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a natural, pleasant-tasting remedy, gentle yet positive in action, and quickly relieves indigestion, constipation, sick headache, belching, etc. Drug stores sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and in thousands of homes it is the indispensable family remedy. For a free trial bottle write Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

There is little room for doubt about the theory that the tides are due to the moon's action upon the surface of the water. Of course, there are other influences, the sun, for instance, exercising no mean force upon the tides; but the chief influence is attributable to the moon. To be sure, there is hardly any theory that is not objected to by somebody, but the theory that tidal action is due mainly to the pull of Luna may be accepted "without a reasonable doubt."

MUCH INTEREST WAS SHOWN BY VISITORS

TWO THOUSAND INSPECTED GAZETTE PLANT ON SATURDAY.

ALL DETAILS EXPLAINED

Visitors Were Shown All Departments of the Newspaper and Art Printing Establishment.

On Saturday afternoon a great number of interested people, variously estimated at from 1,500 to 2,000, accepted the invitation of the Gazette to inspect the plant and printing establishment. Many of the visitors were ladies and the keen interest displayed in the various processes employed in the making of a newspaper and in producing high class art printing indicated a desire to learn first hand the methods of the printers' art.

Directly after one o'clock the visitors began to arrive and the Gazette force were kept busy from that time on until five o'clock explaining the various phases of the work from the receiving of news through the editorial department through to the linotype types where after following the completed paper one lady said: "We can appreciate more fully now the Gazette and what it means to produce a paper each day."

Those who have not actually seen the preparation and work necessary in producing a newspaper for the reader have little idea of the amount of detail entering into it. It is well worth the time spent in visiting the plant and the Gazette management trusts that those interested will come frequently.

The commercial printing department where the finest of printing is produced, received its share of attention from the visitors when the big cylinder presses as well as the smaller jobbers were viewed.

Many of the callers were from out of the city. They combined the fall style display of the stores and the visit to the Gazette plant in their trip to the city Saturday.

The ladies were presented with a rose, and while a large supply had been provided, it was necessary to call upon the florists for additional flowers before the afternoon was passed.

The Gazette wishes to express its appreciation for the interest of its many friends and to extend the invitation again to those who wish to inspect the plant to come in at any time. The big press is well worth a special trip. It runs every afternoon at four o'clock and the stereotype foundry is in operation all afternoon, so come any day.

THREE FIRE ALARMS IN TWO DAYS' TIME

Small Damage Caused to Residence on Main Street Sunday Afternoon—Two Rubbish Blazes.

Between Saturday night and Sunday afternoon the fire department answered three alarms. Damage was caused at the residence of John J. Jolloske Sunday afternoon; a pile of rubbish caught fire in the rear of the Janesville Steam laundry, North Main street Saturday night; and the third alarm was turned in when a debris pile caught fire in the rear of the home of Mrs. Bridget Jones, 419 West-ern avenue.

The fire at the Jolloske residence was caused by the pouring of gasoline into a stove by Mrs. Stella Jolloske, who thought the can contained kerosene. The flames spread to the floor, igniting the furniture. Mrs. Jolloske escaped being burned, although the flames shot from the stove nearly catching fire to her clothes.

The blaze was extinguished by the department, who made a quick run by chemicals. About twenty-five large damage was caused, which included the loss of several chairs and damage by smoke.

About ten-thirty o'clock Saturday night a pile of boxes and waste material in the rear of the Janesville Steam laundry was discovered burning. The fire was just communicating to a shed containing an automobile, while the firemen arrived and flooded the rubbish with chemicals.

In an unknown manner, a rubbish pile in the rear of the home of Mrs. Jones was fired early Sunday morning, causing a run to Western avenue. No damage was caused.

Linus Young, driver of the Dedrick car escaped injury, but his car had a front wheel torn off, radiator damaged, and front axle sprung. Rice's machine escaped any damage.

Death After Victory. A railway man just outside Mitcham station has found a barn owl with its claws firmly embedded in a rat's neck lying dead on one of the rails. The bird had evidently been struck by a train as it was about to fly off with its capture. Owls are common in the neighborhood, as the station is surrounded by trees; and there are numbers of rats in the vicinity, which make a practice of licking the fat off the railway points.—London Mail.

SUNDAY DRUNKS SHOW VIOLATION OF LAWS

Drugstore Bottles Found on Intoxicated Arrested Sunday—Will Make Investigation.

Sunday violation of the liquor laws was evidenced in the municipal court this morning when two of the five men, on the "spree row" had committed made against them for being intoxicated on the Sabbath, from the effects of drugstore whiskey. Two drugstore bottles were found on their persons and on asking Chief of Police Champion this morning if prosecutions would follow, the police chief curtly said, "Someone is going to get hurt if this keeps up."

Hugo Ressler pleaded guilty to being intoxicated Sunday, but his memory was very vague when asked where he obtained the liquor. His case was adjourned until Wednesday, being committed to the county jail to get his mind in shape to remember where he made the purchase. The bottle found on Ressler is the type sold by drug stores.

John Dreyer of Rockford, who is employed near Koshkonong, was the other offender said to have been led astray through violation of the laws Sunday. Dreyer pleaded guilty when arraigned and was given ten dollars and ten days. Dreyer also could not remember of a Sunday purchase, but declared he obtained a flask, enough to last him over the week end, Saturday night.

Threatened Neighbors. John Warden, who lives on Wall street is a bachelor. Saturday a new family named Gleason moved into the house adjoining Warden's abode. He alleges the newcomers borrowed a wash tub of him and failed to return it at the stated time.

The breach of trust galled Warden and fired by liquor, he started on a rampage. He went to the neighbor's house, kicked down the rear door and began sharpening a big butcher knife, uttering dire threats of harm with the dangerous weapon. Officer Charles Dickinson imposed Warden in his bradish of the scalping knife and after a tussle took it away from him. Warden slashed the officer's hand, but was subdued and jailed.

When arraigned Warden's demeanor was decidedly changed and he pleaded guilty to being intoxicated. He admitted being "crazy drunk" and was given thirty days in default of a twenty-five dollar fine.

When arraigned out the commitment papers, Judge Maxfield asked Warden if he was married.

"No, your honor, but will be soon as I can get 'one' that will have me" was the reply.

"You'll have to reform your habits before you do," spoke Judge Maxfield.

Gets Six Months. Fred Kothman, head guilty to second offense drunkenness and after he waived his examination, pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to six months under the commitment law. William McComb, seven days or ten dollars for his Saturday night spree, pleading guilty to being drunk and disorderly.

Indian Arrested. Bombay Deerfoot, the Indian "vodvillie" star who appeared at a local theater, evidently found liquor dealers who failed to observe the federal laws prohibiting the selling of intoxicants to the original American citizens, for Deerfoot went on the warpath Saturday and "tanked-up" at several River street saloons. While Deerfoot is a star performer at juggling, he was unable to navigate safely and the police put him in the "bullpen" overnight.

Deerfoot was released to fulfill a stage engagement at Chicago.

An investigation for violations is being made by the authorities as no dealer is allowed to sell firewater to an Indian.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ABOUT TREES.

"HE that plants trees loves others besides himself." The older I grow the more I like trees. As a child, like most children, I took trees for granted, as big green things, some conveniently arranged for climbing and some unfortunately not. But as I grew older I began to see them as beautiful creatures of nature's architecture. Architecture, as some one has beautifully said, is frozen music. Trees then, are the frozen music of nature. And in how many keys and in how many moods, is this wonderful music played!

We were discussing trees the other night and the Author-man declared that poplars always made him feel homesick. Thence we drifted to a general discussion of the character of different trees and found them as individual as men and women.

Elms, for instance, are a town, rather than an open country tree. They are the doorway tree, par excellence. They belong in the front yard, towering, stately and faithful sentinels over the home, or lifting their cool green arches above the village street.

Oaks on the contrary are not by nature domesticated trees. They are the trees of the fields and woods. They are rugged and independent. The very adjective which by use immemorial has been attached to the oak, is indicative of its independent nature, for we speak of the "sturdy oak" as inevitably as of the "stately elm."

White birches, of course, symbolize youth and virginity. In their slim, straight whiteness, their exquisite pale green leafage, they have all the haunting, happy, sad charm of youth. They are always young, no matter how many years old they may be. We speak of the "grand old oak," the "fine old elm," but never of the "old birch." Birches are gregarious trees. They always grow in happy little groups. One birch would not be half so beautiful. Like Emerson, with his cap-tured maiden, we find their beauty's best attire "As woven still by the snow white choir."

To talk of the languorous charm of the palm tree is to be too obvious. The palm is as inevitably a symbol of languor, tropic sunshine, and all the charms of a "lazy old land" as the birch is of youth and springtime. Yet in this case, the association is one of location rather than of the tree's individual character. Analyze it. What could be less languorous than the perfectly perpendicular trunk of the palm, as leafless as a telephone pole, as rigid as an old-fashioned New England conscience and so smooth, so hard, so regular, that one sometimes looks close to be sure it is not carved of rock or moulded of concrete, but grown out of living wood?

No talk on the individuality of trees would be complete without a word on the most friendly, the most faithful and most generally beloved of trees. You bear us the finest fruit of the new world, and yet it is not wholly for what you give, but for what you are—guaranteed and knotty, but hospitable old apple tree—that we love you. You have a place in our hearts with the old dog that helped bring us up. You're not just a tree; you are a personality.

The children of this generation, bred in apartments and tenements lose many things, and not the least is that they will have no dear old apple tree to cherish in their gallery of memories.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Cake icing will not crack when cut if a little thick cream is added to it. Allow one teaspoonful to each white of egg.

Get some bitter apple from the chemist, crush it, and sprinkle it amongst the clothes. You will find it the finest thing on record for keeping moths away from everything, and one can use garments at a minute's notice, as there is no smell left by bitter apple.

A new way to clean a porcelain bathtub is by putting a little coarse salt into the dampened tub and then rubbing it briskly with a rag wet with turpentine.

THE TABLE.

Okra Gumbo Stew.—Use two quarts of ripe tomatoes to one quart of okra, cut in rings. Put them on to cook with about three quarts of water. Let them cook. Take one chicken, young enough to fry, and cut up and fry brown. Put chicken in with the okra and tomato, with brown gravy from the frying. Several small onions chopped fine, a little corn and young lima beans, seasoning of salt and pepper. Simmer gently for several hours. Serve the gumbo with a tablespoonful of boiled rice and a green pepper cut fine and blanched, with each plate of the gumbo.

Apple Short Cake.—Make a biscuit dough as for short cake, and bake either in a single, flat loaf, round or square, or in two parts put together with butter, so that they will open easily after they are baked. Prepare the fruit sauce as follows: Make a pint of stewed apple, sauce, sweetening to taste. Flavor, when cooked, with a few drops of lemon juice and add the beaten yolk of an egg as soon as the sauce has cooled slightly, so that the egg will not curdle. Add, also, a little of the grated lemon rind. Spread layers of the sauce between and on top of the bread, and over all spread the beaten egg white. The housewife who has never tried a short-cake like this will be surprised at its delicacy.

Pork Cakes.—The longer this is kept the better it seems to get. Chop a pound of fat pork and then pour over it two cups of boiling water. Add two cups of sugar, two cups of molasses—we use Porto Rican molasses—two teaspoons of baking soda, one pound of raisins and salt to taste. Do not mix this too thick. Half the rule makes enough for a family of four. This is an old family recipe and, as you will note, it contains either a cup or a pound of everything. It is a sort of pound for pound fruit cake with

This makes two large loaves and is very nice.

Pork Cake Without Boiling Water.—The following recipe will make two large loaves which will keep moist for a long time. Take half a pound of fat salt pork and chop very fine. Then cream it as you would cream butter. Add one and a half cups of sugar, one and a half cups of molasses, three eggs, one cup of milk, six cups of flour, one pound of raisins, six cups of flour, one pound of raisins, half a pound of citron, a teaspoon of soda, one nutmeg grated, one teaspoon of cinnamon, half a teaspoon of cloves of allspice. Chop the raisins and citron, sift a little flour over the fruit and put the fruit in it the very last.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

A surgeon may as well attempt to make an incision with a pair of shears, or open a vein with an oyster knife as a cook pretend to dress a dinner without proper tools.

SOME ODD DISHES.

Mashed potatoes as a leftover will make a most delicious luncheon dish as follows: Take a pint of well-seasoned mashed potato and add an egg without separating the yolk from the white, but have it well beaten. Have ready eight timbal molds, grease them with butter, then sprinkle with crumbs, sifted. Fill the molds with potato, take out the center of each and fill the space with ham and cream sauce. Cover with potato and set in the oven ten minutes. Turn on a serving dish and serve with tomato sauce.

Egyptian Chicken.—Select a well-fattened hen of a year old, rub well inside and out with salt, pepper and butter. Put three tablespoonfuls of rice inside the fowl and a cupful around the fowl in the pan in which it is to be cooked. Season the rice with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of curry. Set in a tight dish in a steamer and cook for at least four hours. The giblets may be made into a sauce and poured around the rice.

Chicken Croquettes With Rice.—Take one cupful of boiled seasoned rice, one cupful of chopped chicken which has been left over, salt, pepper and butter to season, one-half cupful of milk and one egg. Put the milk on to scald, add chicken, rice and seasoning, when this boils, add the egg well beaten and roll in egg and crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat.

Salmon Souffle.—Take one can of salmon separated with a fork. Cook together two-thirds of a cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs, one tablespoonful of flour, and one of butter blended, one scant teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper. Take from the fire, stir in the flaked fish, then the whites of three eggs whipped lightly. Turn into a baking dish, cover lightly with crumbs and bake about twenty minutes. If the pan stands in hot water while baking the souffle will be better.

Quick Dessert.—A pretty and delicious dessert is this: Break up bits of sponge or pound cake into sherbet cups, add a little fresh pineapple or a mixture of banana, pineapple and orange, pour over a thin custard and serve with whipped cream.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a friend much older than myself who is constantly giving me advice. He says I am too young to go out with my girl friends and meet boys and go walking with them. Is he jealous? Is he right about it?

EVELYN.
He certainly is right and if you are wise you will heed his advice. No girl can keep the respect of men or keep from being very severely criticised who will form acquaintances on the street or go walking with boys. I should judge that you were too young to be out walking with young men at all.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I rub cold cream over my face and then put powder on, as most girls do. After a while my face shines like glass, especially my nose. Kindly tell me what causes this and also advise what to do in order to take the shine off, or what to do so that it won't shine in the first place.

Try washing your face only in cold water in the daytime and steaming it and soaking it with hot water at night. After all the pores are working well apply cold water at the last before going to bed. The cold water stimulates the action of the pores. Do not put soap on the face; it will make it shiny. I would advise less cold cream. Try the powder without it; the two together clog the pores and that produces heat and as the pores are clogged there can be no perspiration or moisture. That is what causes the shiny appearance.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of thirty-two years old. Am I too young to have boy friends? (2) Is it all right for a boy to take you home from a party? (3) Is it wrong to speak to a boy you have never been introduced to when you meet him? (4) When walking with a boy should he walk on the inside or outside of the sidewalk? (5) Is it all right for a girl to wear a boy's ring? DOT.

(1) Not too young for boy friends, but certainly too young to have boy escorts. (2) At a party of young people of this age the hostess should arrange the matter. If she fails to do it the boys should ask the girls to take them home. (3) Certainly, unless it is a class mate whom you have come to know by being thrown with him constantly.

(4) The outside, but less and less attention is being paid to this, especially in cities where the walks are crowded.

(5) No; it shows too great familiarity. Wear no ring until old enough for the engagement ring.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am five feet three and one-half inches tall; how long shall I wear my dresses? I am fourteen years of age.

(2) How shall I wear my hair? (3) Which do you think is right: To come down the street alone at night after the show or to have an escort? H. P.

(1) Wear them to your shoe tops. (2) Pomp it with a comb or barrette and tie with ribbon at neck or half way down the back. (3) Never go to the picture show alone, as it is never right to go home alone and equally wrong to pick up an escort. Have an older person with you for a chaperone or else have a number of young people together.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

A family of growing children who had the spending habit about as bad as one could well have it, were teasing for a new toy that was a bit too expensive for their father's income. They wanted this particular toy more than they had ever wanted anything and as there were four boys to join in the pleading, it was not an easy task for the mother to say no.

Finally she told them she would loan them the money to purchase the toy, they to pay her back so much out of their weekly allowance until the debt was cleared. The next week their united approval. The toy arrived and as it was really worth having in a home where there were four boys, the money invested had been wisely spent. In due time the debt was paid; the boys never missing a week that they did not make their payments to their mother. When they were free from the debt the mother suggested that they start and save the same amount each week that they had paid to her, so as to have the necessary cash on hand in case another instance like the one just past should occur. They agreed to this and each boy promised to never spend all he had; to save a little part of his money, no matter how small the amount; to never have a pocket without money and to know how to have it in his pocket and see things he desired and still hang onto his cash. This was by no means an easy task at first, but the boys had habituated themselves to buying what they wished as long as their money held out; then going without until the next week. By doing this they had been saving and eager to save a part of their spending money and at the end of the first year of this plan each boy had fifteen dollars to his credit.

Now, fifteen dollars is not a stupendous sum of money, but it is a nice amount for a small boy to save in one year and as these boys saved more than half of their weekly allowance each week, great credit is due them. The habit, too, of thrift had been instilled into their youthful minds. That in itself is a splendid achievement, that many a person past the age of youth has not yet accomplished. Getting out of the children's class and entering the realm of grown-ups it is rather a safe wager to make that a grown-up does not save fifteen dollars a year. If a person is well, strong, and able to work—why he or she should work. Working, they should have something to show for it. The man who hires one is not doing it out of charity. If you are not worth your wage you would not be kept. You are making your employer a wee bit stronger in his business each day—if you are this right sort of help. That is the reason for your being on his pay-roll. Now then, what are you doing for yourself daily? Are you growing a bit stronger, a bit sicker, or financially, each day? If not—why not?

A young man or woman who is so blamed foolish as to live right up to the extreme edge of their income should have a guardian. Yes! We know there might not be enough guardians to go around, but if all one

In no other country has a charm played so large a part as in Spain. One of the most famous rings in history is what is known as the "Spanish Opal," to the influence of which is attributed by the superstitious inhabitants of the country all the misfortunes suffered by Spain in the last century. It was given to Alfonso XII by the notorious adventuress, Comtesse de Castiglione, with whom the monarch was friendly when he was an exile and a pretender to the Spanish throne.

The Awakening of Peggy

LXXXIX.

Peggy did not know how to feel or what to think after she had heard Bill Burbank's stammered and only partially completed proposal. She had not known how deeply the young man had felt, and in the moment of other distractions she had hardly given him a thought of late.

And yet Peggy liked Bill. After he had left and she had gone to bed, she felt wakened by the reflection that someone cared so much for her. She could bring no especial reasoning to bear against him, beyond the fact that she had never expected him to offer his hand, and the more potent fact she did not really love him.

Parker Condrey's absence and silence tended to complicate the situation. Peggy's heartache over the thought that he had tired of her tended to make her overlook her lack of real affection for Bill. They were both young, too young, in fact, to be planning matrimony, but in spite of every reasonable consideration, Peggy found herself wondering at times if she would refuse him. And so she fell asleep.

The dawn of another day found Peggy as perturbed and undecided as ever. Good old Bill seemed to have a claim upon her from the fact that he had never disappointed her, never given her worry or heartache. Peggy did not realize that this in itself was proof of the fact that there was no strong bond of attachment between them. The young man who troubles a girl's mind and heart is the only one she loves.

All day Peggy debated the decision she should reach. In her secret heart the realization was growing that she must not accept one who did not mean enough to her to stir her own feelings more deeply. And so finally she wrote a note to Bill, breaking to him as gently as she could the news that she could not give him the desired encouragement.

Peggy had hardly returned to the house after posting her note at the corner when the telephone bell rang. With a little thrill of anticipation she answered.

"This is Condrey," came a man's voice. "Here I am, back on earth again."

"Where in the world have you been?" asked Peggy. The sound of his voice was so welcome that she almost laughed from sheer pleasure. "Called away unexpectedly nearly a week ago," he assured her. "Didn't have time even to phone you good-

This can be accomplished through 19 Daily Newspapers of the Wisconsin Daily League.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Mother Will Probably Do Better Later On—

BY E. LEIPZIGER

The Last Shot

By FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by Charles Scribner's Sons)

After an interval, more figures made a rush across the road. They, too, in Stransky's words, paid a price for seeing the garden. But the flashes from the rifles and the automatic provided a target for a Gray battery. The blue spark that flies from an overhead trolley or a third rail, multiplied a hundredfold, broke in Marta's face. It was dazzling, blinding as a bolt of lightning a few feet distant, with the thunder crash at the same second, followed by the thrashing hum of bullets and fragments against the side of the house.

"I knew that this must come!" something within her said. If she had not been prepared for it by the events of the last twelve hours she would have jumped to her feet with an exclamation of natural shock and horror. As it was, she felt a convulsive, nervous thrill without rising from her seat. A pause. The next shell burst in line with the first, out by the Linden-tree; a third above the veranda.

"We've got that range, all right!" thought the Gray battery commander, who had judged the distance by the staff map. This was all he wanted to know for the present. He would let loose at the proper time to support the infantry attack, when there were enough dribbles across the road to make a charge. The dribbles kept on coming, and, one by one, the number of dead on the road was augmented.

Marta was diverted from this process of killing by piecemeal by a more theatrical spectacle. A brigade commander of the Grays had ticked an order over the wires and it had gone from battery to battery. Not only many field-guns, which are the terrors of the artillery, but some guns of siege caliber, the maadifs, in a sudden outburst started a havoc of tumbling walls and cornices in the upper part of the town.

Then an explosion greater than any from the shells shot a hemisphere of light heavenward, revealing a shadowy body flying overhead, and an instant later the heavens were illuminated by a vast circle of flame as the dirigible had dropped the dynamite and its death-blow. But already Brown infantry was withdrawing from the town, destroying buildings that would give cover for the attack in the morning as they went. Two or three hours after midnight fell a silence which was to last until dawn. The combatants rested on their arms, Browns saying to Grays, "We shall be ready for the morning!" and Grays replying, "So shall we!"

Marta, at her window, her eyes following the movements of the display, now here, now there, found herself thinking of many things, as in the intermissions between the acts of a drama. She wondered if the groaning, wounded man were crying for water or if he were wishing that some one at home were near him. She thought of her talk with Lanstron and of feminine and feeble it must have seemed to a mind working in the innumerable processes of the clash of millions of men. She saw his left hand twitching in his pocket, his right hand gripping it to hold it still, that afternoon when, for the first time, she had understood his injury in the aeroplane accident as the talisman of his feelings—his controlled feelings! Always his controlled feelings!

She saw Westerling, so conscious of his strength, directing his chessmen in a death struggle against Parlow. And he was coming to this house as his headquarters when the final test of the strength of the Titans was made.

She hoped that her mother was still sleeping; and she had seconded when she was startled by her own calmness. Again, the faces of the children in her school were as clear as in life. She breathed her gratitude that the procession in which they moved to the rear was hours ago out of the theater of danger. In the simplicity of big things, her duty was to teach them, a future generation, no less than Feller's duty was the pursuing shadow of his conscience. She should see war, alive, naked, bloody, and she would tell her children what she had seen as a warning.

Silence, except an occasional rifle shot—silence and the darkness before dawn which would, she knew, concentrate the lightnings around the house. She glanced into her mother's room and marveled at a miracle to find her sleeping. Then she stole downstairs and opened the outer door of the dining-room. A step or two brought her to the edge of the veranda. There she paused and leaned against one of the stone pillars. Dellarne himself was in a half-reclining position, his back to a tree. He seemed to be nodding. Except for a few on watch over the sand-bags, his men were stretched on the earth, moving restlessly at intervals, either in an effort to sleep or waking suddenly after a spell of harassed unconsciousness.

CHAPTER XII.

Hand to Hand.

With the first sign of dawn there was a movement of shadowy forms taking position in answer to low-spoken commands. The searchlight yielded its vigil to the wide-spread beam of the east, and the detail of the setting where Marta was to watch the play of one of man's passions, which he dares not permit the tender flesh of woman to share, grew distinct. Bayonets were fixed on the rifles that lay along the parapet of sand-bags in front of the row of brown shoulders. Back of them in the yard was a section of infantry in reserve, also with bayonets fixed, ready to fill the place of any who fell out of line, a doctor and stretchers to care for the wounded, and a detachment of engineers to mend any breaches made in the breastwork by shell fire.

The gunner of the automatic sighted his barrel, slightly adjusted its elevation, and swung it back and forth to make sure that it worked smoothly, while his assistant saw that the fresh belts of cartridges which were to feed it were within easy reach.

In straw hat and blue blouse, shuffling with his old man's walk, Feller came along the path from the gate. He was in retreat from the enticing picture of the regiment of field-guns in front of the castle that was ready for action. As the infantry had never interested him, he would be safe from temptation in the yard.

"This is no place for you!" said one of the engineers.

"No, and don't waste any time, either, old man!" said another. "Back to your bulbs!"

Feller did not even hear them. For the moment he was actually deaf.

"Fire!" said Dellarne's whistle. "Thur-r-r!" went the automatic in soulless, mechanical repetition, its tape spinning through the cylinder, while the rifles spoke with the human irregularity of steel-tipped fingers pounding at random on a drumhead. All along the line facing La Tir the volume of fire spread until it was like the concert of a mighty loom.

The Gray batteries having tried out their range by the flashes of the automatic the previous evening, were making the most of the occasion.

"Uk-ung-n-ung!" the breaking jackets whipped out their grists. The reserves, the hospital-corpse men and the engineers hugged the breastwork for cover. The leaves clipped from the trees by bullets were blown aside with the hurricane breaths of shrapnel bursts; bullets whistled so near Marta that she heard their shrillness above every other sound. She was amazed that the houses still remained standing—that anyone was alive. But she had a glimpse of Dellarne maintaining his set smile and another of Feller, who had crept up behind the automatic, making impatient "come-on!" come-on! what-is-the-matter-with-you?" gestures in the direction of the batteries in front of the castle.

"Thur-ee-sh-thur-ee-sh!" As the welcome note swept overhead he waved his hands up and down in mad rapture and then peeped over the breastwork to ascertain if the practice were good. The Brown batteries had been a little slow in coming into action, but they soon broke the precision of the opposing fire.

Now shells coming frequently fell short or went wide. The air cleared. Then a chance shell, striking at the one point which the man who fired it six thousand yards away would have chosen as his bull's-eye, obscured Feller and the automatic and its gunners in the havoc of explosion. Feller must have been killed. The dust settled; she saw Dellarne making frantic gestures as he looked at his men. They were keeping up their fusillade with unflinching rapidity. Through the breach left in the breastwork she had glimpses, as the dust was finally dissipated, of gray figures, bayonets fixed, pressing together as they came on fiercely toward the opening. The Browns let go the full blast of their magazines. Had that chance shell turned the scales? Would the Grays get into the breastwork?

All Marta's faculties and emotions were frozen in her stare of suspense at the breach. Then her heart leaped, a cry in a gust of short breaths broke from her lips as the Browns let go a rasping, explosive, demoniacal cheer. The first attack had been checked!

After triumph, terror, faintness, and a closing of her eyes, she opened them to see Feller, with his old straw hat—brim torn and crownless now—still on his head, rise from the debris and shake himself like a dog coming ashore from a swim. While the engineers hastened to repair the breach he assisted Stransky, who had also been knocked down by the concussion, to lift the overturned automatic off the gunner. The doctor, putting a hand on the gunner's heart, shook his head, and two hospital-corpse men removed the body to make room for the engineers.

Dinner Stories

A commuter was in a dreadful wreck. The collision had been head-on, four coaches were telescoped, flames burst forth, the shrieks and groans of the dying mingled with the hiss of escaping steam and the roar of fire.

The commuter, black as coal, was dragged out by the feet from under a mound of charred and mangled corpses.

A physician bent over him anxiously. "You hurt?" he asked.

"Hurt? Me? Of course I ain't hurt! I never am! I can't be! I carry an accident insurance policy!"

Cummings and Weisner were business rivals. One day at the club they fell to talking.

"Do you carry any life insurance?" queried Cummings.

"Yes," was the answer. "I have $10,000."

"Made payable to your wife?" asked Cummings.

"Yes," said Weisner.

"Well," asked Cummings, "what kind of an excuse do you pull off to your wife for living?"

Two college students were arraigned before the magistrate charged with hurdling the low spots in the road in their motor car.

"Have you a lawyer?" asked the magistrate.

"We're not going to have any lawyer," answered the elder of the students. "We've decided to tell the truth."

THE WORLD SET FREE

EUROPE'S ARMAGEDDON AND THE LAST WAR.

By H. G. WELLS. Copyright, 1914, by H. G. Wells.

It would have seemed a strange thing to the men of the former time that it should be an open question, as it is to-day, whether the world is wholly Christian or not Christian at all. But assuredly we have the spirit, and as surely have we left many temporary forms behind. Christianity was the first expression of world religion, the first complete repudiation of tribalism and war and disputation. That it fell presently into the ways of more ancient rituals cannot alter that. The common sense of mankind has tolled through 2,000 years of chastening experience, to find at last how sound a meaning attaches to the familiar phrases of the Christian faith. The scientific thinker, as he widens out to the moral problems of the collective life, comes inevitably upon the words of Christ, and as inevitably does the Christian, as his thought grows clearer, arrive at the world republic.

CHAPTER XVII.

"Fowler Will Kill Me."

THE second operation upon Marcus Karelin was performed at the new station for surgical work at Parana, high in the Himalayas above the Sutlej gorge where it comes down out of Tibet.

It is a place of such wildness and beauty as no other scenery in the world affords. The granite terraces which run round the four sides of the low block of laboratories looks out in every direction upon mountains. Far below in the hidden depths of a shadowy blue cleft the river pours down in its tumultuous passage to the swarming plains of India. No sound of its roaring haste comes up to those serene terraces. Beyond that blue gulf, in which whole forests of giant dead trees seem no more than small patches of moss, rise vast precipices of many colored rock, fretted above, lined by snowfields and jagged into pinnacles. These are the northward wall of a towering wilderness of ice and snow which chambers southward, higher and wilder and vaster to the culminating summits of our globe, to Dhaulagiri and Everest. Here are cliffs of which no other land can show the like and deep chasms in which Mont Blanc might be plucked and hidden. Here are icefields as big as inland seas, on which the tumbled boulders lie so thickly that strange little flowers can bloom among them under the untamed sun. To the northward and blocking out any vision of the uplands of Tibet rises that citadel of porcelain, that Gothic pile, the Lio Porgyul—walls, towers and peaks—a clear 12,000 feet of veined and splintered rock above the river. And beyond it and eastward and westward rise peaks behind peaks against the dark blue Himalayan sky. Far away below to the south the clouds of the Indian rains pile up abruptly and are stayed by an invisible hand.

Rather it was that, with a dream-like swiftness, Karelin flew high over the irrigations of Rajputana and the towers and cupolas of the ultimate Delhi, and the little group of buildings, albeit the southward wall dropped nearly 500 feet, seemed to him as he soared down to it like a toy lost among these mountain wildernesses. No road came up to this place. It was reached only by flight.

His pilot descended to the great courtyard, and Karelin, assisted by his secretary, clambered down through the wing fabric and made his way to the officials who came out to receive him.

In this place, beyond infections and noise and any distraction, surgery had made for itself a house of research and a healing fastness. The building itself would have seemed very wonderful to eyes accustomed to the flimsy architecture of an age when power was precious. It was made of granite, already a little roughened on the outside by frost, but polished within and of a tremendous solidity. And in a honeycomb of subtly lit apartments were the spotless research benches, the operating tables, the instruments of brass and the glass and platinum and gold. Men and women came from all parts of the world for study or experimental research. They wore a common uniform of white and ate at long tables together, but the patients lived in an upper part of the buildings and were cared for by nurses and skilled attendants.

The first man to greet Karelin was Clana, the scientific director of the institution. Beside him was Rachel Borken, the chief organizer. "You are tired?" she asked, and old Karelin shook his head. "Cramped," he said. "I have wanted to visit such a place as this."

He spoke as if he had no other business with them.

There was a little pause.

"How many scientific people have you got here now?" he asked.

"Just 392," said Rachel Borken.

"And the patients and attendants, and so on?"

"Two thousand and thirty," said Karelin. "I shall have to be a patient. But I should like to see things first. Presently I will be a patient."

"You will come to my rooms?" suggested Clana.

"And then I must talk to this doctor of yours," said Karelin. "But I would like to see a bit of this place and talk to some of your people before it comes to that."

He winced and moved forward.

"I have left most of my work in order," he said.

"You have been working hard up to now?" asked Rachel Borken.

"Yes. And now I have nothing more to do—and it seems strange. And it's a bother, this illness, and having to come down to oneself. This doorway and that row of windows is well done; the gray granite and just the line of gold and then those mountains beyond through that arch. It's very well done."

Karelin lay on the bed with a soft white rug about him, and Fowler, who was to be his surgeon, sat on the edge of the bed and talked to him. An assistant was seated quietly in the shadow behind the bed. The examination had been made and Karelin knew what was before him. He was tired, but serene.

"So I shall die," he said, "unless you operate?"

Fowler assented.

"And then," said Karelin, smiling, "probably I shall die."

"Not certainly."

"Even if I do not die, shall I be able to work?"

"There is just a chance."

"So, firstly I shall probably die, and if I do not, then perhaps I shall be a useless invalid?"

"I think, if you live, you may be able to go on—as you do now."

"Well, then, I suppose I must take the risk of it. Yet couldn't you, Fowler, couldn't you—drug me and patch me instead of all this—vivisection? A few days of drugged and active life—and then the end?"

Fowler thought. "We are not sure enough yet to do things like that," he said.

"But a day is coming when you will be certain."

Fowler nodded.

"You make me feel as though I was the last of deformity. Deformity is uncertainty—inaccuracy. My body works doubtfully; it is not even sure that it will die or live. I suppose the time it will no longer be born into the world."

"You see," said Fowler after a little.

"BLOOD WILL TELL"

The Heroes of the War.

"Blood will tell," is an axiom that in all the ages has never been gainsaid. Every man who does a brave, heroic act carries within his veins a quality of blood that urges and sustains him. No matter whether he inherits it from a long line of famous ancestors or from the sound and healthy constitution of his immediate parents, whose only distinction is honorable toil and a simple, virtuous life.

It matters little where or how you obtain it, but it matters all the world that by some means you possess good blood. Good blood is first, last and always the making of manly men and womanly women. It is the source of all courage, virtue and happiness.

A new man can be made out of one that's "used-up," bilious and dyspeptic. It's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It starts the torpid liver into beautiful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, and builds up flesh and strength. It's the only Blood and Liver Remedy that's guaranteed, in every case to benefit or cure. If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, the money is promptly refunded. But it keeps its promises—that's the reason it can be sold in this way.

It is not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

You only pay for the good you get.

"Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, relieves Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, bound in cloth, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of wrapping and mailing only. Address: Doctor Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

pause, "It is necessary that spirits such as yours should be born into the world."

"I suppose," said Karelin, "that my spirit has had its use. But if you think that is because my body is as it is I think you are mistaken. There is no peculiar virtue in defect. I have always chafed against all this. If I could have moved more freely and lived a larger life in health I could have done more. But some day perhaps you will be able to put a body that is wrong altogether right again. Your science is only beginning. It's a subtler thing than physics and chemistry and it takes longer to produce its miracles. And meanwhile a few more of us must die in patience."

"Fine work is being done and much of it," said Fowler. "I can say as much because I have so little to do with it. I can understand a lesson, appreciate the discoveries of able men and use my hands, but those others, Pigou, Masterton, Lie and the others, they are clearing the ground fast for the knowledge to come. Have you had time to follow their work?"

Karelin shook his head. "But I can imagine the scope of it," he said.

"We have so many men working now," said Fowler. "I suppose at present there must be at least a thousand thinking hard, observing, experimenting, for one who did so in 1900."

"Not counting those who keep the records?"

Humorous Childish Errors.

The literary mistakes of children are perennial and perennially amusing in character. A public school teacher who recently has compiled a book of "first aid" information in behalf of her pupils says, for example, that the allusion "Dan to Beersheba" brought forth the amazing misinformation that Dan was a man who was confined in a lion's den for mistreating his wife, Beersheba, and that another eager if inaccurate student described Canaan as the mother of Cain.

If the snow happens to be very deep in the Alps it is not at all uncommon to find plants which open their flowers before the surface is reached. All this goes on although the soldanellas have not felt the sun.

"From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously, going from one drug to another and suffering more or less all the time. A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were weakened and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless when I began to use the pre-digested food, Grape-Nuts.
"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble, to my great surprise Grape-Nuts digested easily from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed.

WAR ANTI-CHRISTIAN SAYS REV. THORSON

PASTOR OF NORWEGIAN LUTHERAN CHURCH DELIVERS ABLE PEACE SERMON ON SUNDAY.

MEET TO RULE EARTH

Through Efforts of Peace-Makers Rests Hope of Ultimate Disarmament—War Violates All Christ's Precepts.

Rev. T. C. Thorson, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church, delivered an able peace sermon to his congregation Sunday morning, which stated that war is anti-Christian, violating all the fundamental principles of Christ's teachings. It is the meek who will inherit the earth and it is through the efforts of the peace-makers that we shall find our final breaking away from things military, he contended. Rev. Thorson spoke as follows:

"The human race is not the time when nations shall submit their dispute before God as the supreme arbiter, and remake their implements of war into instruments of peace. Yet who can seriously doubt that in the future when the Christ spirit shall have laid hold upon the hearts of men and disarmed mistrust and suspicion, we shall have universal peace. Peace not resting upon the force of arms, but upon the God-given peace. Then shall nations not raise sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

"Christianity is not compatible with war, the expressions, 'The Lord is a man of war,' the war book of the Lord, in the Old Testament, and the military metaphors of the New Testament notwithstanding. Against this view it has been urged that nowhere in the Bible is the war unconditionally condemned. An argument that proves too much. For after a similar fashion we might argue that Christianity is compatible with suicide, infanticide and slavery, since it is nowhere unconditionally condemned. Jesus said to Peter: 'Put up again thy sword into its place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.' Let us view war in the light of a few of the salient doctrines of Christianity."

"The human race is a unit. As every organism develops from a single cell, as the whole human race has its common origin and ancestor in Adam. From the blackest Ethiopian to the fairest Caucasian, from the most degraded tribe to the most exalted nation, all one family, we are. For God made all nations of one blood. War is anti-Christian. It is a family quarrel."

"The human race is a brotherhood. Christ declared to us the fatherhood of God. And Jesus Christ Himself, the Son of God, declared Himself our brother. Then are we all brothers. Brothers embraced in the arms of love of our Heavenly Father. War is more than a family quarrel. One brother killing another is fratricide. One anti-Christian because it is fratricide."

"The sacredness of the human body. During the present war protests against the destruction of the civilian population, the work of art, have come from well nigh every land. And who can estimate the great loss that art has sustained, more sacred to God than any edifice reared by the hand of man. For God no longer dwells in temples made by hands, but in the body, forever sacred, because Jesus Christ came and dwelt among us in human flesh. Paul says: 'Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the spirit dwelleth in you?' In the course of battle men are trampled down like grass; their bodies trampled upon and cast into the unknown graves as unceremoniously as if they were the carcasses of dogs. War is anti-Christian because it desecrates the temple of God."

"The value of the individual. Put a man on the one scale of God's balance and the material universe in the other, and you see the universe goes down. For every man has been bought with a precious price—the blood of Jesus Christ. War may come as a thief in the night. The pressure of circumstances attendant upon war, the preparation for war, the severing of business connections and family ties is too bewildering and sudden for calm reflection. In view of possible death. With hatred in their hearts, curses on their lips, with sins unforgotten, men fall in battle, precipitated into eternity into the hands of the living God. War is anti-Christian, bringing premature death, cutting men off in their aims; it is premeditated, cold-blooded murder."

"The new law. Christ brought out a new and yet an old law, for the government of man—the law of love. 'You have heard that it was said Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, but I say unto you, Love your enemies. How pitiable that in these days of warring nations, love be so foreign to the human mind, and where hatred rules, suffering leaves an empire of sorrow, desolation and devastation. War is anti-Christian, bringing premature death, cutting men off in their aims; it is premeditated, cold-blooded murder."

"Sell your coat and buy a sword. These words of Jesus were spoken to his disciples. And when they took them literally and brought in two swords, he said to his children, 'It is enough.' And when the over-zealous Peter began to use the sword, Christ said, 'Put up thy sword in its place. For all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword. It is not of the individuals that we take the sword, but of nations as well. Such is the verdict of history. Witness Egypt, Babylonia, Assyria, Greece and Rome. They conquered by the sword and in their turn perished by the sword. The Jews, a peace-loving nation, though without a country, because they rejected the Saviour, they remained a separate and distinct people to this day. Again China, because she has been a peace-loving nation, has survived the work and ruin of many empires. The meek shall inherit the earth, not the warrior. No nation can win a war. Peace means progress and prosperity. Every step in the advancement of humanity has been gained at the price of blood and suffering and sacrifice. The progress of one nation has been the progress of all. No nation lives until it dies. The more freely a nation has given of itself, the more has it enriched its national life. No nation can cause injury to another without hurting itself. For nation is linked to nation by common interests, making every war a civil war. For so long as nations shall teach the art of war, so long will the nations be at war, so long as one nation shall walk over the prostrate form of the other, so long will the blood-soaked earth cry for vengeance upon the victor's head, and men shall cry, 'Peace, peace, but there shall be no peace.' It is through the efforts of the peace-makers, that the hope of ultimate disarmament and peace flourishes. It is through the tireless efforts of men imbued with the spirit of Him who gave us the law of love, that the lives of men shall be saved. Then shall universal peace become a reality. Then shall the Prince of Peace rule the nations; and He will judge between the nations and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation; neither shall they learn war any more."

NEED TO PRAY DAILY FOR CAUSE OF PEACE

Dean Reilly Urges Importance of Supplications to End Gigantic Conflicts.

Dean E. E. Reilly at St. Patrick's church on Sunday, delivered a strong sermon to his congregation on the urgent need of daily prayer to aid in bringing about an end of the unnecessary war now waging in the European countries.

At the nine and ten-thirty masses, Father Mahoney spoke along the lines of the president's proclamation, especially pointing out the importance of an unbiased opinion regarding the present conflict that bids fair to change all Europe; cautioning them to keep in mind that if this war is not speedily terminated it could not fail to make its effects felt in this country. Prayer, he asserted, was needed daily to stem the great wave of destruction that was robbing Europe of its best people, filling her orphanages and leaving desolation on every side.

In the evening, during the exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, the rosary and litany of the Blessed Virgin Mary was recited for a speedy termination of this useless war.

At St. Mary's church, Father Wm. Goebel, spoke at both masses on the same topic and the urgent need of all people joining in united prayer for peace.

RALLY DAY PROGRAM AT CARGILL CHURCH

Event Took Place of Regular Preaching Service—Procession by Primary Children Pleasing.

Sunday was Rally Day at the Cargill Memorial Methodist church. The program given by the church, taking place of the regular morning preaching service, and commenced at ten thirty. One of the most pleasing features on the program was the long procession through the choir of the church, led by the primary children of the primary department, of the Sunday school. This number followed the Organ Voluntary, rendered by Mrs. F. T. Richards, organist. The Rally Day program was presented in a charming manner. The Young People's Choir led by Miss Emily Sewell rendered a difficult selection. The program followed: Organ Voluntary, 'Andante', Processional, 'Onward Christian Soldiers'.

YOUNG LADIES' AUXILIARY AT WHITEWATER MEET

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Whitewater, Oct. 5.—The Young Ladies' Auxiliary of the First Congregational church were entertained on Saturday afternoon by the Misses Emma Dahlen and Louise Chamberlin at the home of Miss Dahlen on Fremont street. It was a very successful meeting. Thirty members and two guests being present. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in sewing for the church fair to be held in November, after which coffee, sandwiches and Norwegian cakes were served, and the young ladies of the church and congregation were given the opportunity to become better acquainted. The committee to draw up a constitution made a report which was adopted. The next meeting will be held on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 10, at the home of Miss Ruth Brundage and Miss Bessie Bronson, at the Brundage home on Highland street.

Eugene Nichols' sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Nichols of Canastota, New York, have been guests at the Nichols home the past week. They came via automobile from Chicago with Mrs. Merline Albino and son, Edward, their daughter and grandson, who spent the week-end and were before returning to their home in Chicago.

George Chamberlin came from Madison to spend Sunday with the E. B. Chamberlin family.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ellington and family motored from Edgerton on Sunday to call at the Mrs. Millie Anderson and the Dierdorffs.

The annual meeting of the Society of the Congregational church will be held Monday evening, Oct. 5, in the church parlors. President W. C. Daland of Milton college occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday morning and preached a splendid sermon on "Peace." The chorus choir sang the anthem in an exceptionally inspiring manner and the offertory music was sung by Mrs. Clarence Gustavson, who is very gracious to willingly give her beautiful voice for many occasions. On Sunday afternoon, President Daland gave the organ recital, which was enjoyed by many music-lovers. He interspersed a talk on "Music," explaining what emotions were designated by the high or low notes of the organ, and the effect of a march on Verdi's "Aida." We hope President Daland may come again this fall to give us another musical treat.

CONFLICT IN EUROPE IS A WAR OF GREED

REV. PARISOE DECLARES CHRISTIANITY IS IN NO MEASURE ON TRIAL IN WARFARE.

GIDEONS NOT WANTED

Type of Men Who Are Craved With War Cannot be Depended Upon to Keep God's Peace, Pastor Declares.

Men and nations who, like Gideon, were craved with power, cannot be depended upon to keep God's law and preserve peace, declared the Rev. George Edwin Parisoe in his peace Sunday sermon at the Presbyterian church yesterday morning. He spoke in part as follows:

"Gideon, a powerfully built man of Manasseh, was busy beating out a few sheaves of grain in a secret wine press when the angel of the Lord appeared unto him and said: 'Thou art a mighty man of valor.' Gideon thought the angel was mocking him and exclaimed: 'My family is the poorest in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house. Yes, but remember when God speaks, there is no consideration then of environment, the fact which counts is the attitude of heart.'"

"Gideon was willing to do as God had commanded, that is, the messenger of God. He obtains a certainty of pledge that God will go with him, then the incident of the fleece. Assured of God's presence he summons an army and guided by God's angel he selects 300 men from the army of 32,000. He pushed on against the Midianites, crushed and subdued them."

"Thus far the story of Gideon's life is strong and beautiful. But from here on we see so plainly in Gideon's life the same fallacy that has produced the terrible war in Europe—the worship of power, the insatiable influence of idle pleasure."

"Because of Gideon's great victory of conquest and battle, he was offered the crown of kings. This he refused. We must give him credit for that. The next breath and he makes the request that every man would give him the golden ear rings of his spoil. Willingly they gave them. Gideon made an ephod of them. An ephod was, I do not use oblige for purposes of divination. This idol was placed in his chief city. It became a snare to the house of Gideon."

"On the zenith of his power, in the midst of the glory of his great achievements, Gideon made the fatal error of erecting a mock ephod. It takes a great deal more than a costly ephod to complete our worship. We may build stately and costly houses of worship, but the building dare not be our religion."

"Gideon could hew down the enemies of Israel by the thousand, but he had absolutely nothing to heal the hurt of his people. Why? Simply, that he had not used Paul's words, 'I did not know the law of Moses, the law of God. Gideon did not stop to think like through, else he would have, in some measure at least, comprehended sin.'"

"That I say is the real condition in Europe. We need not be surprised because of this horrible war. It is the war of greed. Christianity is not on trial in this war, nor has it been, or can it be. No man can see the Christian teachings in the conflict. It is the war of power craved nations. Nations, who like Gideon, have been the means of uplifting the conditions of their people in matters of art, science, medicine, religion, economic, commercial and industrial pursuits. Nations that have erected beautiful houses of worship unto God. But nations, who, like Gideon, have not essentially known the law of Moses, the law of God. A nation, like an individual, who knows not at heart the law of God, cannot be at peace. That is, the peace of Christ, which passeth human knowledge."

"There is a purely intellectual knowledge of God, which knows God only as a dark outline, some distant ruler of the universe. There is the other knowledge of God, heart knowledge, which seeks to know and do the will of God as Father."

"In this war, it is not the question which nation is at fault, no for all are at fault. Rather the question is—as long as we learn to know not the law of 'love my neighbor as thyself,' that I must need carry my own weak life to God, and then the divine acceptance at Calvary's cross, bring us very close to God. For either that cross of Christ was an excess and superfluity; or my selfish hard life is the secure standard of peace, love and charity."

"No, the world does not want Gideons. For Gideons do not bring peace. The world wants Christ, and His peace."

"To secure for the world the peace of Christ let us turn to Paul for suggestion. Ephesians 6:10-20. 'Be strong in the word, and in the strength of His might. Put on the whole armor of God. Stand against the wiles of the devil. Our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the principality, against the powers, against the world rulers of darkness, against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places. Wherefore put on the whole armor of God. Gird your loins with truth. Put on the breastplate of righteousness. Take up the shield of Faith. Take the helmet of salvation. Take up the sword of the spirit which is the word of God.' But do all this my hearer with God. May God strengthen us, with prayer and supplication, praying at all seasons."

"Prayer is merely talking it all over with God. And peace will come, as all nations talk their lives over with God. May God strengthen us, and all Christians to do our work for Him."

FORTUNES INVOLVED IN WORLD'S SERIES

STATISTICS SHOW MILLIONS OF DOLLARS OBTAINED IN TITLE GAMES.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD

Nearly Two Hundred Thousand Dollars Taken in Games Last Year Between Giants and Athletics.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Oct. 5.—No clearer or more positive illustration of the extraordinary interest taken by the public in the annual World's Championship Series of baseball can be desired than that furnished by a glance at the financial results, a statement of which is officially announced at the end of each season's competition. The cover of the title and flag. Through the box office its popularity can easily be measured. Compared with the meagre returns at the initial series in 1884, the enormous crowds registered by the clicking turnstiles show that by leaps and bounds the attendance in recent years was assumed such gigantic proportions that there is no thing what it may amount to in years to come.

The first championship games between the Providence "Grays" and the Metropolitan may have been only lightly attended and there is no record to show what the receipts amounted to for the three games they played. The following year, however, when seven games were played in four different cities, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, the financial result was about $2,000. That year the fight was a hot one between the Chicago National League and the American Association Club of St. Louis, and one can easily imagine what would be the result just now if such a series were possible over a similar course of days. The receipts for the first series in 1884 were $1,400. There was a falling off in the receipts when the Cleveland-American series of five games resulted in only $14,750.

In 1903 when the first series was played between the National and American Leagues, eight games brought a little over $50,000. There was no contest in 1904 but a year later there was a decline in the prices of admission and the receipts for the first five games at Philadelphia and New York, $28,495, were taken in for five games. The attendance fell to 91,723 as compared with over 100,000 two years previously. The attendance dropped to $3,000 in 1912, the receipts for the series, but the receipts jumped to nearly $95,000.

The marked increase in attendance receipts was registered in 1909 when 145,255 persons paid $88,302 for the seven game series between the National and American Leagues at Detroit, Philadelphia and Chicago played five games in all. Before 1909 the receipts of $173,980 and the attendance of 179,351 persons contributed $242,164 to see the Philadelphia and New York series of six games. This was a mighty jump in receipts and attendance. The receipts for the series, which was played in 1912, were $1,100,000. The attendance of 1,100,000 persons was a record for the series, which was played in 1912.

The basis upon which the World's Series receipts are divided is as follows: The National Commission receives 10% of the receipts of each game. The players of the competing clubs receive 60% of the remaining 90% of the sum is divided equally between the winners and losers. The remaining 40% of the sum of the first four games goes to the club owners. 50% of the receipts of every game after the first four belong to the property of the stockholders of the two competing clubs.

LAWRENCE HUMBLIED BY BADGER ELEVEN; MAROONS SCORE WIN

Game at Madison Was Poorly Played—Carroll Upsets All Dope and Trounces Marquette Aspirants.

The results of Saturday's football contests both in the east and west are on the whole rather surprising. Tactics introduced by the smaller schools was to some of the eastern title aspirants costly while on the other hand, the western style of play was bettered over a year ago. Open style was used by Indiana against Chicago, but the Hoosiers were foiled, when Sags repeated his old time stunt of being far from confident, only to turn the trick and humble the Indiana men, 34 to 0.

Wisconsin won their first game of the season from Lawrence, 21 to 0, although play during the entire contest was ragged and poor. The Badgers must get into much more hard practice before they meet Chicago on October 31st. Marquette was the favorite next Saturday. The Milwaukee Catholics show a terrible weakness over 1913, as shown by their defeat at the hands of Carroll College Saturday, 16 to 0. Carroll outplayed them in every stage of the game.

The chief assets lacking among the various college squads following Saturday's games, is coaching. Much depends on the mentors work within the next few weeks. Unless Wisconsin trims Marquette overwhelmingly, and Chicago trounces Northwestern on next Saturday, predictions that the Maroons and Badgers will be the sole contenders for this conference title, will be deceiving.

Interest is centered in the big sectional battles of a few weeks off. Michigan has a wonderful scoring machine, as shown by their victory over Case Saturday. Notre Dame is scheduled to meet Yale soon, likewise trounced the Alma eleven Saturday. Western critics pick Hurry-Up Yost's point-to-minute machine to defeat Harvard. Notre Dame's contest is in doubt.

CYCLECAR RACE TO OPEN BOSTON SHOW

Boston, Oct. 5.—A curtain raiser in the form of a race meet at Combination Park will be a feature of the first annual light car and cyclecar show which will open in Horticultural Hall October 12 and continue five days. The meet is scheduled for Saturday afternoon, October 10. The card of the events includes a two-mile, class A race for cars up to 71 cubic inches displacement and a 25-mile race free-for-all for cars up to 125 cubic inches and 1150 pounds chassis weight. There will be exhibitions by several well-known foreign cars. Many prominent entries are already in.

The Boston Red Sox have signed a pair of new players, Joe and Mooty Shannon. The names and one is said to be just as good as the other. Some wag has pointed out that they ought to work well on double plays. It would start a lot of trouble if the official scores gave one a hit that belonged to the other, which is likely to happen.

Frank Chance, who left the New York Yanks and in fact all baseball forever, is making a coast to coast tour in his machine. He has most of his family and immediate relatives with him. The P. L. when last heard from declared that he was having a very enjoyable time and that he is done with baseball worries for good and are.

HIGH SCHOOL SQUAD IN MOLESKINS AGAIN

Practice and Scrimmage Resumed Saturday Afternoon at Fair Grounds After Two Weeks' Lay-off.

Again, the high school athletic situation is cleared up. The high school football squad were in uniforms Saturday afternoon at the Driving Park Association grounds, and for two hours punting, tackling, and hard scrimmaging was the work undertaken. The first team handed themselves as though practice had been held every day for the past month. Coach Curtis believes the men have more vim, and while he expresses no opinion as to a general class after the students that he intends to produce a winning eleven before the season closes. "Bob" More is doing the punting, and is kicking some classy sprats to give the end a chase after. New plays were tried the regulars, and once more the team is going to strive to regain what they lost during the time athletics was wiped out. The first team lined up in the following manner Saturday against the second:

Dudley, le; More, rt; McCulloch, lg; Slawson, c; Schenck, rg; Jones, rt; Viney, rt; Capt. Stewart, qb; Cronin, lb; Dearborn, rh; Rau, fb.

Sport Snap Shots

Who will be the slugging hero of the approaching world's series? With scarcely an exception all the big fans since the series started have made the rep of some young man who came forward with very brilliant work at the bat. We have all seen how Frank Baker earned his great reputation. It isn't unlikely that some other player this fall will win fame with his wonderful work at the bat. Home runs are an especially popular means of winning sudden fame. The great number of home runs in any series was made in the Giant-Brooklyn games in the fall of '09. On that occasion eleven homers were made. Another wonderful batting feat was made in the series was Frank Isbell's achievement of four doubles in one game in the series of 1906.

Even though he has the pennant clinched, George Stallings will keep his regulars still in the lineup through the rest of the season. The usual custom has been to give the regulars a rest after the pennant has been put on ice, but Stallings doesn't give much heed to usual customs. He has managed to break several managing precedents and he continues to do so. Stallings' idea is to keep his regular team going and to see that it continues the steady drive it has been making through the past two months. Stallings has said that he placed the regulars in the lineup staff and that if they can go on through the series without mishap he will offer no excuse should the Braves fail to beat the Athletics.

Quarrels and brawls are being had in Chicago's amateur baseball circles. A new organization has started up in opposition to the National Amateur Baseball association. The new one claims that the organization has not given them due recognition in several matters and so they plan to start out for themselves. In Cleveland, too, where amateur baseball thrives, there have been little quibblings at different times. When these fuses come up there is almost always more or less scandalous debating about concerning professional players in amateur ranks. Usually it is soon quieted down. But the truth is known that quite a few players in several large towns manage to earn a living at "amateur" baseball.

When it comes to a discussion of the brains with the Braves and the Athletics there is chance for lots of warm argument. Each has a host of players. Ira Thomas, Collins and Barry four lieutenants who are brainy and clever. They form a sort of committee for Connie and have counsel whenever there is matter for worthy profound meditation. Stallings of the Braves has not, perhaps, as large a committee, but it's every bit as brainy a one. Stallings' house is just as shrewdly managed as any that adorns the game today. And Johnny Evers, his lieutenant, has the greatest baseball brain that has ever been in the business. The Athletics through with a greater number of high young players, have little on the Braves in the sum total of thinking ability.

The Brooklyn Dodgers made at least one record this season in spite of their crippled legs. They took a complete series of five games straight. The Cincinnati Reds did the losing. Ray Collins of the Red Sox put over a rare trick the other day when he worked against the Tigers. He handled both games of a double-header and won both of them.

The Boston Red Sox have signed a pair of new players, Joe and Mooty Shannon. The names and one is said to be just as good as the other. Some wag has pointed out that they ought to work well on double plays. It would start a lot of trouble if the official scores gave one a hit that belonged to the other, which is likely to happen.

Frank Chance, who left the New York Yanks and in fact all baseball forever, is making a coast to coast tour in his machine. He has most of his family and immediate relatives with him. The P. L. when last heard from declared that he was having a very enjoyable time and that he is done with baseball worries for good and are.

NORTH ENDS BUMP CARDINALS IN FRAY WINNING BY 17 TO 1

Janesville Nine Unable to Check Strong Beloit Nine in First of Championship Series.

Beloit triumphed over Janesville in its most ruthless and heartless manner Sunday afternoon when the North Ends gave the Janesville Cardinals a fearful lacing, the wonderful statistics after nine innings of a slugfest showing the Cards losers by a 17 to 1 score. The North Ends gained partial revenge for the three beatings the Cards have given them this season, for they walked over, trod upon and almost kicked the Janesville players 11 over the diamond.

For four innings the contest was a all game, with Crandall holding the North Ends safely and the Cardinals failed to check the advance of the pit and Sullivan sprinted to third and slid safely. Wootton struck Butters out, feeding him deceptive drops, and put two strikes over on Hall. On the third one Hall banged out a single, scoring Sullivan, thus raising the local fans' hopes.

Captain Eddie Lenahan at once got the North Ends scoring machine in action and it went full speed without check during the rest of the game. In the fourth game, with one down, Crandall walked Ripley after Cornell was safe on Butters' boot on a ground-out. That started the celebrated leaguer from Beloit, struck out. Cavanaugh singled, putting two runners on the far cushions. Thurman fanned and looked as if Crandall would escape. Buffington hit a slow roller down to Lee, who let the pill slip away from him. Two runs scored, for Nehr failed to back up on the play. Lee claimed the runner, but the umpire ruled the base runner, but Ump Reading refused to see it that way.

In the fifth the bottom of the game was kicked off by doubles by Cornell and Ripley, who pounded out the long waiters with men on the sacks. Three runs were piled up and the props of the game began to fall. It was a "good night" but game in the sixth when the North Ends hopped on Crandall and saw his delivery. Six runs counted on three hits showed up the defense that the Cards gave Crandall. A walk, and error by Lee, and a single filled the cushions with rone down. Garrity was purposely walked on, and the fourth base hit, that rolling beyond the reach of Hall, allowing Olson to slide home in a close decision that the Ump gave to Beloit. In the seventh Crandall lost, hoping and five were scored on five hits, doubles by Ripley and Wootton pushing the runner around.

In the eighth George Berger went to the mound, Crandall was benched and the slugfest continued in a more limited form. The victors showed a little heart and only tallied one more.

It was a sorry day for Janesville, but the odds promise to be changed at the next game, played here. A crowd of nearly a thousand witnessed the struggle and needless to say the Beloit fans took great delight in the slaughter.

DALTON BREAKS INTO MARQUETTE CONTEST

"Mootsey" Plays Right Half in All But Three Minutes—Atwood Plays Entire Game at End.

Two more Janesville youths have gained places on college football squads. Maurice "Mootsey" Dalton, and Edward Atwood, both promising material on the Carroll College football eleven for this fall, have made the squad, and aided in trouncing Marquette University at Milwaukee on Saturday, 16 to 0. Atwood played right end as a regular, while Dalton replaced Vayette at right half after Vayette had played but three minutes. It was his first attempt at college football. Atwood played last week. Several Janesville football enthusiasts who attended the game, speak good words for these two men. "It was their first appearance in a big contest, and they look good for the future," stated one who witnessed the contest at Milwaukee.

DOES GOOD WORK WITH THE CHAMPIONS

Eddie Murphy.

Though Eddie Murphy doesn't rank with the best batters on the Philadelphia American league team, he is nevertheless one of Connie Mack's most valuable men. He plays in the right field. He is fast, clever and there in a pinch. He has a batting average of .269.

Though Eddie Murphy is not related to Danny Murphy, last year's captain of the Athletics, the two look very much alike and both play in the same position. Danny Murphy is now with the Brooklyn Feds.

Chinese Serial Dramas.
Serial drama has been popular in China for centuries. Their most famous play, "Pi-Pa-Ki—The Story of the Lute," written in the fourteenth century, is divided into twenty-four sections and innumerable acts and scenes, and takes several days to perform. And Chinese plays of forty long acts, lasting a week or two, are quite common. In England the longest play ever written, but not performed, was an unnamed drama, in twenty-five acts, by "Mad Nat Lee."

That Whiff of Violets.
"My! what a flowery whiff! That handkerchief must have been literally steeped in violets," exclaimed one girl to another who had just shaken out from its folds a fragrant square of linen. "Not steeped in violets, my dear," was the answer, "but boiled in orris water. The effect is the same. On washing days I supply the washerwoman with a good-sized piece of orris root, and she throws it into the water where my handkerchiefs are boiling. When they come up from ironing they are as redolent of orris as can be. Then I slip them between the folds of a sachet filled with violet powder, and they never lose their fragrance. Violet and orris sent together make a real violet odor."

Didn't Do Her Much Good.
Mrs. Chancel—"Oh, Henry, I wish you had been to church this morning. Dr. Dives preached one of the loveliest sermons on 'Love your neighbor,' and the way his remarks made that spiteful, hateful Mrs. Gabbers squirm was something that would have done your heart good."

ANCIENT SENLIS, IN NORTHERN FRANCE, DESTROYED BY GERMANS

Here is a view of the ruins of Senlis, after the bombardment of that ancient north of France town by the Germans. The beautiful old cathedral lies in ruins. Before the bombardment the town boasted of its sixteen towers of the Gallo-Roman fortifications, which were so jealously preserved through the ages. The city had a population of about 8,000. During the bombardment the mayor and a score of citizens lost their lives.

WITH EYES CLOSED

By REX G. POST.

Scorers was a disappointment to the Kid. After six months as a "sub" in a little local station, it seemed to him that promotion to his first "OS" job ought to mean a spacious station, a constantly clicking key, and a rush at the ticket window. But Scorers was only an abandoned box car and a "board." And to add to the Kid's chagrin, he was only the night man. That he was to take the night man's place he knew when he accepted the position, but ambition to plunge into the whirling world of the railroad had been irresistibly urgent, and he accepted.

The Kid was without companions during the dull, dreary hours of the night—hours to which the morning waiting of the crows lent no cheer. Watson came on at 6 and left at the same hour in the evening. Occasionally he would pause to exchange a few commonplaces with the Kid—usually, he hurried to the camp where he lived. The nights were long and lonesome; part of the day was spent in repose.

He became wearied of the monotony after a few weeks and began to spend a few hours of the daylight in hunting the rabbits which abounded in the surrounding country. It was his only diversion, and it gradually grew upon him until he was filling the days with it and losing the sleep which was absolutely indispensable if he was to remain vigilantly on guard during his shift.

The Kid sat looking out of the window in the side of the box car and wondered how much longer he could endure the oppressive humdrum.

No. 68 went by at midnight carrying a green. He reported her passage and turned to his reading. The long melancholy blast of the whistle echoed in his ears long after the train had flashed by with its golden squares of light. It diverted him from his book for a moment, but his eyes slowly returned to the page, and he read on.

Suddenly he was gripped by the dread that something unusual had occurred. It seemed to him that he had been dozing. He started as second 68 roared by.

"I'll wait and then put her down," he muttered drowsily.

Again he was overwhelmed by a subtle consciousness that all was not as it should be.

He listened as the sounder abruptly broke out in a harsh staccato.

"V-V-V-S-V-V-S-21," ticked the instrument.

He stirred.

"Where have you been—in the hay?" came the query. "OS."

He hastily "OS'd" second 68 and closed the key.

"Third 68 by yet?" the sounder asked.

The Kid opened his key.

"Not yet," he replied.

"OK, put her in the siding for second 73."

Loaded with fast freight, second 73 was waiting at Hawk, about twenty-five miles east of Scorers, for the right of way. The Kid clicked the order to Hawk, and shortly afterward the wire told him that second 73 had started.

Again the fear of error and disaster assailed the Kid. He could not resist it. He picked up the train-sheet and scrutinized it. He rose unsteadily to his feet, horror graven in every line of his pale, drawn face.

"Third 68 went by and I didn't put her down," he gasped.

It meant wreck, death, and disgrace. He had slept, he knew it now, and the truth of it was seared into his mind. The trains would collide about ten miles west of Hawk. No stations intervened—it could not possibly be averted. In a neglectful moment the tide of circumstances had swept aside the placid current of his life and turned it into a dizzying turmoil.

Should he report her? For a moment he vacillated. They would know why it had happened. He need not admit the horrible truth now.

"Third 68 yet?" the key broke in terrifyingly.

With the vacillation had come weakness.

"Not yet," the Kid answered.

He sank into his chair and buried his face in his hands. Often, before he became a telegrapher, he had wondered how feels the man who makes the fatal blunder and hurries a trainload of passengers into the infinite.

It had seemed to him that it must be crushing, maddening—the end of all peace. Now he knew how really dire it was.

He reached for the key. He would do what small human thing he could—confess.

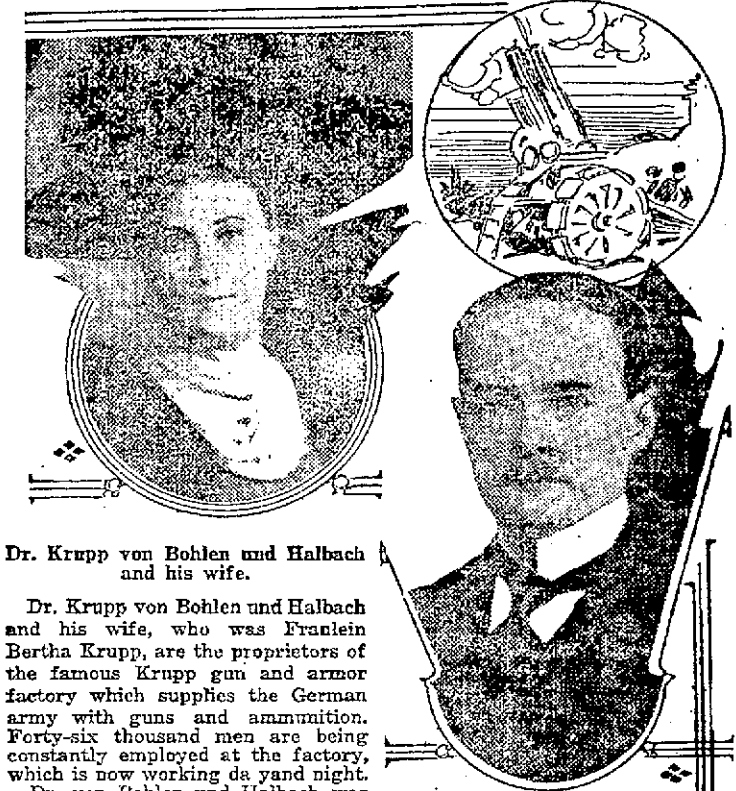

Suddenly there was a roaring in his ears. His form straightened in the chair and his head went back as he gazed with staring, unbelieving eyes as third 68 rumbled by with a gleam of light.

He rubbed his eyes and looked stupidly at her tail-lights as they swept from his vision.

He sat down and thought long and anxiously. Third 68 was safe. There had been no order on second 73. He had dreamed that he had fallen asleep—a dream that was a strange mixture of fancy and truth.

RUIN AND DESOLATION IN WAKE OF FIGHTING ARMIES ON FRENCH SOIL

Behind the huge fighting armies on French soil the country presents an aspect of utter desolation. Villages and cities have been destroyed, homes burned, bridges blown up. These pictures show the ruins of two bridges over the river Marne, destroyed by the French to impede the advance of the Germans during the hasty retreat of the allied armies toward Paris.

"Bishop of Wall Street" Continues Street Preaching

New York, Oct. 5.—Though Wall street is officially closed and as far as business is concerned is absolutely dead, yet one institution—one form of its life—continues as before. This institution is the Rev. William Wilkinson, better known to hundreds of the country's most prominent financiers and to thousands of habitués of the financial district as "The Bishop of Wall Street."

For the past ten years this pastor, who is one of the vicars of Trinity church, has preached daily on Wall street. The curbside has been his pulpit and his congregation has been made up of millionaires and clerks. All are alike to him. They are all a part of mankind and it is to mankind that he preaches—not any class or division.

Since the war started and the stock market closed Broad and Wall streets have presented a very dreary appearance. But "Bishop" Wilkinson has never missed a day's appearance there. And there always is a large "congregation" on hand to hear him preach.

The history of the "Bishop" and how he came to adopt Wall street as his church form an interesting story. Mr. Wilkinson formerly lived in Minnesota. In fact he achieved considerable fame there as a minister with Bishop Whipple of Minnesota. He was named a member of the relief committee to bring the succor to the sufferers in the great forest fire that section in 1894. At the risk of his life he visited the scene of the disaster and buried 155 charred and mutilated bodies.

But the Rev. Wilkinson long had had visions of preaching to the workers and financiers on Wall street. He had heard of how that was the most ungodly place in the world. They needed missionaries in Africa, in Asia and over their countries, he argued with himself but why didn't they need them in Wall street just as much.

So despite the objections of the late James J. Hill, Senator Nelson and the late Governor Johnson he came to New York from Minnesota. Those men wanted him to remain in Minnesota. His great work after the forest fire had endeared him to them and they wanted to keep him with them.

Dr. Wilkinson hesitated for some time after coming to Trinity about broaching his project to his associates. He feared that his plan would be regarded as shocking and outraging a stately old dignified Trinity. But his fears were ill-grounded. When he finally took up the matter he was met with the greatest kindness. The authorities at Trinity, while agreeing with him that he was guilty of a startling innovation, said what his apparent sincerity would offset any criticism that might be occasioned.

So the Rev. Wilkinson went into Wall street to save souls. When he first appeared on the street corner and started to talk he created a mild sensation. Passersby first thought he was some kind of medicine taker. But on stopping to listen they learned otherwise. It was not long before the minister became well known and has named the "Bishop of Wall Street." And as "Bishop" he is known today.

First clerks and the tolling class in general made up his congregation. But news of him reached the financiers and some of them stopped to listen to him. And they received quite a shock when he attacked them for methods some had been reported as using. He warned that he had but one gospel to preach and that it was for rich and poor alike. "You may disagree with me," he told them. "You may criticize me, but there is one thing you cannot do—you cannot patronize me." It wasn't long until the millionaires formed a large part of his audience. His "sermons" appealed to them as much if not more than it did to the others. He was continually raking them over the coals but his statements were made in all sincerity and they knew it.

The "Bishop" now numbers among his best friends some of the biggest men the street has ever known. They realize his usefulness and what he has done for the workers in the financial district. He has worked for the betterment of all and indeed has done a great deal for all classes.

It is impossible to estimate the good accomplished in this section through the ministering of this modest and unassuming real man, was the tribute paid to the "Bishop" by Henry Clews, dean of the financial district.
